ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

All praises be to Allah (S.W.A), the most Beneficent and the Merciful for giving me the opportunity to conduct this research. May His infinite peace and blessing showered on his Prophet Muhammad (S.A.W), his family and companions.

I would like to register my profound gratitude to my two supervisors Professor Muhammadu Mustapha Gwadabe and Dr. Salisu Bala for their criticisms, suggestions, patience, encouragement and the tremendous interest shown throughout the period of this study. No doubt your interest and concern made it possible for this study to reach this level of completion. Additionally, I would like to show my deepest appreciation to all the lecturers in the department of History, Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria, for their advice, suggestions and objective criticisms, throughout the period of my postgraduate work in the department. More specifically I would like to express my appreciation to Prof. Sule Bello, Prof. Muhammad Sani Umar, Prof. Abdulkadir Adamu, Prof. Alkasum Abba, Prof. Mahmud Hamman, Prof. Dahiru Yahaya, Dr. Saleh Abubakar, Prof. Musa Mamman Adamu and Prof. Idris Shaaba Jimada. I will remain indebted.

My profound gratitude also goes to my parents Alhaji Halilu Abubakar and Hajiya A'isha Usman for their support, advice, encouragement and financial assistance. My special thanks goes to my entire family members for their persistent support, advice, love, assistance and prayers towards my success. Same gratitude and appreciation is extended to Air Commodore Muhammad Sabi'u Ibrahim (MS IBRAHIM) for his financial support, fatherly advice, and encouragement.

Librarians of the Northern Historical Research Scheme (NHRS) and the entire Departmental library staff of Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria assisted this study in a number of ways. I remain grateful. I am also grateful to Dr. Kabiru Haruna Isah of the Department of History, Bayero University Kano, for the encouragement, advice, and assistance. My appreciation goes to my course mates; I will forever remain grateful for their company and friendship. In the field of research leading to this work, I am grateful to Mallam Nura Isa Zubairu, Dr. Muhammad Wada, Bakano Abubakar Murtala and all my informants for providing needful information.

Finally, once again I would give my utmost, eternal and infinite gratitude to Allah (S.W.A) and his most beloved Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H)

ABSTRACT

This research is a documentation of the history of the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in Kano city, 1978-2016. Islam and the establishment of Friday prayer mosques in Kano city have a long history defined by clear objectives guided by rules and regulations. Specifically this study traces the major factors responsible for its development, spread and historical implications on the community in Kano city. It begins with a historical background demonstrating the introduction of Islam and the establishment of mosques in Kano. The sources used in this study are both primary and secondary. More specifically, interviews formed the major source in addition to a number of published and unpublished studies consulted. The study shows the importance of mosque as a center of observance of prayer and learning; of socio-economic activities, and public interaction. It found that though wealthy individuals played important role in the citing of mosques in their respective communities, growing misunderstanding, division and disagreement leading to conflicts only came about when the desire by religious organizations and groups to establish and control Friday mosques and maintain their authority over them manifested.

NOTES ON SOURCES

The main source used for this research is Primary source, in the form of oral interviews with an eyewitnesses or active participants in the historical events under study. This is essentially due to the absence of studies of this nature carried out on the area of study. Available studies on this area focused on the history of the establishment of the religion or on mosque in general. A number of interviews were conducted which led to the collection of the necessary information that produced this piece. All the interviews were conducted and recorded in Hausa language and preserved on electronic device. In some cases the interviews were not only recorded, notes were taken depending on the choice of the interviewees, because some preferred note taken than being recorded.

The major limitation associated with this source was that the people interviewed actively belong to different socio-cultural and religious sects, which made it one-sided and therefore highly subjective. Another limitation is on the inability of some of the informants to provide the researcher with the exact date of the events, mostly due to failures of memory. This led the researcher into interviewing so many people across the respective divides and comparing notes based on the informations collected.

Another source used in this study is that of the written record. This included published and unpublished documents. A number of published works in form of books, newspaper, and unpublished projects, dissertation and theses were used. They served as a guide in assessing the reliability of information gathered during the course of the interviews.

CHAPTER ONE

BACKGROUND TO THE STUDY

1.1 INTRODUCTION

Islam attaches importance to congregational prayer more than the individual prayer; because of its desire to create unity and universal brotherhood among the adherents of the religion. The aim of congregational prayer is, therefore, to encourage a community whose members regard themselves as equal before God to put in practice such a belief.<sup>1</sup> The weekly gathering and other congregations in Islam i.e. the Eid prayers and annual pilgrimage are the strong examples of the nature of unity of purpose, sense of belonging, and co-operation among the Muslim Ummah. The term Juma'ah, an Arabic word for Friday, is derived from the word Al-Jam'i Arabic which means to gather. The Friday prayer (Salaatul-Juma'ah) is a compulsory prayer offered in congregation weekly in a central mosque. It is offered in place of Zhuhr (noon) prayer. It is an occasion for the assembly of the Muslims of a whole city or town. It gives Muslims the opportunity to meet together to discuss and solve their individual as well as community problems.<sup>2</sup>

The Masjid is also an Arabic word for mosque, it simply means a place of worship<sup>3</sup> and a meeting place for Muslims. Mosques (Masallatai) are built so that people can perform their ritual prayers in them, because congregational prayer is more rewarding than praying alone. The benefits for praying in congregation made praying in the mosque more commendable than praying elsewhere and this understanding allows Muslim to build mosques. It however, discourages to have mosques very close to one another in the Muslim community.<sup>4</sup> Furthermore, mosques could be built willingly by anybody and nor should a person's land be seized to build a mosque, unless it is voluntarily given or legally purchased.<sup>5</sup> For example, when the immigrants (Muhajirun) arrived at Yathrib (Madina), the Prophet negotiated and paid for the site.<sup>6</sup> Evidently, this is a clear testimony that mosque should not be built on lands not legitimately owned or paid for. Thus, the common practice (mostly in Nigeria) of building mosques on any available government land, sometimes blocking water ways or other forms of passages is not acceptable in Islam.<sup>7</sup>

In Kano, since the reign of Sarkin Kano Sulaiman b. Adahama (1807-1819), the establishment of any Friday prayer mosque was under the control of the Emir.<sup>8</sup> To establish a Friday prayer mosque the people of the area have to set up a committee to approach the authority for permission. Such request must pass through the office of the ward, village and district heads and finally to the Emir. The Emir will then appoint and send delegates to survey the area in order to make sure there is no Friday mosque within Five to Six Kilometers before he approves of it.<sup>9</sup> Though no Friday prayer mosque built during the reign of Sarkin Kano Sulaiman Abahama, the necessary channels were however put in place to ensure control and obedience to the constituted authority.

1.2 STATEMENT OF THE RESEARCH PROBLEM

This study is about the History of the Development and Spread of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano City, 1978-2016. Since the reign of Sarki Abdullahi Bayero (1926-52) when the Kano main Friday mosque was reconstructed, it remain the only mosque in Kano city where Friday prayers were said. By 1969 Kano experienced, for the first time, the construction of additional Friday prayer mosque. Though not in the city, but it was on record the second mosque established by the authority, after all due processes were followed. Indeed the establishment was in response to increase in population, emergence of new settlements and the distance away from the mosque in the city. The establishment of a Friday Mosque has no problem if it is done to address issues to do with development as the case of the second mosque located in the Sabon Gari area. In the case of Kano city the problematic came about when new ideas about the interpretation of the religion started to filter into the society from about 1978, against traditionalist (mostly Sufi). Though such differences have been in existence even among the Sufi adherents, but were not as serious to cause separation of mosques. The adherents of the new ideas challenged the traditionalist to have introduced into the religion practices that are outside the religion. Indeed they went ahead and condemned such practices as unbelief and therefore should not be accepted in Islam. This, according to this study, is what initiated disagreement and the need for additional Friday prayer mosques, which explains the proliferations of Friday prayer mosques in Kano city since 1978.

Friday prayer mosques are not supposed to belong to any group, because of the ideas of bringing Muslim community together to worship every Friday.<sup>10</sup> The emergence of organization

<sup>10</sup> Interviewed with Malam Usman Makwarari, 77 years, Head of Qadiriyyah of Makwarari, in Dandago, AlKali Buhari Daura road, on 03/02/2017. Note, the 1804 Jihad leader stated clearly that mosques should not be spread and if there are many mosques, Friday prayer should be said in one of the mosques, because the aim of Friday prayer is based Friday prayer mosques has created divisions and conflicts in Kano.<sup>11</sup> This new development constitutes a major threat on the unity of Islam and Muslims. This research is therefore aimed at documenting the forces and processes that produced this outlook.

To address these challenges, this study addressed the following research questions.

- i. What factors led to the proliferation of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano city within the period of this Study?
- ii. When did Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano city start to bear group identity?
- iii. To what extent did the organizational based Friday Prayer Mosques created division among the Muslim community of Kano city?

1.3 AIM AND OBJECTIVES

The aim of this study is to explain the history of the development and spread of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano city from 1978-2016. It is conducted to achieve the following objectives:

To historically trace the development and spread of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano city;

To discuss the forces and processes behind the proliferation of Friday mosques in Kano city;

To bring out the effect of the spread of Friday prayer mosques in Kano city;

1.4 JUSTIFICATION OF THE STUDY

Friday Prayer is a weekly congregational prayer for Muslims, it is performed every Friday. Since the introduction of Islam in Kano and the establishment of Friday Prayer Mosque in 1359, Friday Prayer Mosques were only located in very few places. Indeed, for a very long period of time there was only one Friday mosque for the whole of Kano city. From 1969 to 1991 a lot of Friday mosques were built in Kano, but in the city there was only one Friday Mosque, until 1992. From 1992-2016, Friday prayer mosques increased to ten in Kano city. So far no study explains the reason and impact of this development on Islam and Muslims in Kano city. Studies on the history of mosques in Kano are mostly concern with the history and development of mosque in general. This created space for this particular study which concerns an explanation of a particular type of mosque and in Kano city. It is to explain the forces and processes responsible for the development and spread of Friday mosques in Kano city 1978-2016.

1.5 SIGNIFICANCE OF THE STUDY

This research traces the transformations in the development of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano city. It explains the factors responsible for its spread, and how that has shaped the society. In the process, it has brought out the factors responsible for the development and speedy spread of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano city. This study has added value to the existing works through objective investigation, documentation and analysis of sources available for the purpose of historical reconstruction. It is therefore an additional literature on the question of the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in Kano in general and Kano city in particular.

It documented historically the number of Friday Prayer Mosque in Kano city and the religious activities that are taking place in each, aside the prayers. The study also shows the spread of Friday mosques, ownership, the existing divisions and disunity among the followers.

1.6 SCOPE OF THE STUDY

This study is a documentation of the History of the Development and Spread of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano City from 1978-2016. This study begins from 1978 and terminates in 2016. The date 1978 marked the period of struggle for influence and identity contest between different scholars in Kano and the emergence of religious organizations that indirectly influenced the establishment of Friday mosques in Kano in general and Kano city in particular. The date 1978 also denotes the emergence of religious groups or sects which created or intensified conflict among scholars in Kano with each trying to sustain and get more adherents than the other groups. The period 2016 on the other hand, which is the terminating period for this study marked the period when this phenomenon reached its peak, during which state policies on the establishment of Friday Mosques were violated. Indeed Friday Mosques started to bear group identity and by implication creating the basis for disunity among the Muslims in the City. This has evidently contradicted the main objectives of the establishment of such mosques.

The area of study is Kano, which is an important urban center in West Africa due to its being a commercial as well as a center of Islamic learning and politics. Kano emirate is geographically located between latitude 10°30cN and 13°N and between longitude 7° 40' and 10°35'E. The biggest and most important town in the Kano Emirate is Kano city, which made up the capital of the Emirate.<sup>12</sup> The term “city” refers to a large and permanent settlement bigger than the town;<sup>13</sup> Kano city is found within the city walls and gates erected at tactical points to control and regulate access into the city.<sup>14</sup> Kano city is largely inhabited by the indigenous people of Kano, all the most important traditional cultural institutions are housed within the walled city: Kasuwar Kurmi (the traditional market), the main Friday congregational Mosque, and the Emir’s palace. Our Kano city of consideration comprised of the wards that defines the city in the period of study.

The subject of this study is therefore to document the increase in number of the Friday prayer mosques in Kano city and explain the forces and processes behind it. What appeared interesting and relevant is that though divisions and disagreement among Muslim groups in Kano predated 1978, but bitter division that led to establishment of identity based mosques only started by 1978.

1.7 LITERATURE REVIEW

In an attempt to achieve the objective of reconstructing the history of the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in Kano city, various sources were consulted. No doubt there are historical works on mosques in Kano, indeed some of such works have even been published, but there is none on Friday prayer mosques in Kano city.

This review begins with the study by Muhammad Sani Zahradeen titled “The Place of Mosques in the History of Kano”. The study discusses the history of mosques, their functions and importance in the life of Muslim community of Kano. Zahradeen looks at how mosques were established at different periods in Kano Metropolis.<sup>15</sup> He asserts that the importance of mosque goes beyond the congregational prayers; it serves as a school for the community, but also as mobilization and celebration center. Zahradeen acknowledges that as a result of increase in population in Kano owing a number of factors including increase in birth rate, migration of people due to opportunities as a result of the establishment of industries, so many mosques were built in Kano Metropolitan to cater for the growing worshippers.<sup>16</sup> Zaharaddeen's study therefore focuses mainly on the history of the establishment and place of mosques in Kano Metropolis. This made it strikingly different with this study which is about the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques, and covering a more contemporary period, 1978-2016. Indeed this study looks at the religious and social activities of the selected mosque as well as other factors that led to proliferation of the mosques beyond population increase, which Zaharaddeen mentioned. This study benefitted enormously from the pioneering effort by Zaharaddeen; so broadly Zaharaddeen's effort has made the study of mosques in Kano richer and less challenging. By concentrating on mosques in general, it gave chance for new researches, which this study benefits from.

The second document reviewed is a MA thesis by Auwalu Anwar titled “Struggle for influence and identity: The Ulama in Kano, 1937-1989”. This study found the document to be significant particularly when it looked at some of the initial divisions and disagreements that engulfed the Muslim community of Kano, i.e. the issues of Sadlu and Qablu. This understanding, as well discussed by Anwar, provided information that support this study when it shows how divisive the Kano community was at the pre 1978 period, even though they were all from the Sufi background. Indeed the study further shade light on the emergence of religious organizations, which also justified the claim of this study, and added that competition ensued between the organizations represented by Sufi brotherhoods and the anti Sufi organizations.<sup>17</sup> Anwar's study has no doubt provided the ideological leaning of this research. It created the historical and intellectual backing for this study but limited itself to the struggle for influence and identity by the Ulama, particularly between the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah Sufi brotherhoods. This created space for this study which aimed at addressing the outcome of the contest between not only the Sufi adherents, but also looking at other emerging organization represented by Jama'tu Izalatul Bid'a wa Iqamatus Sunnah (JIBWIS) in Kano city.

The next document reviewed is a PhD thesis by Kabiru Haruna Isah titled “Islamic Groups and Sacred Space in Kano: Contesting the control of Tudun Murtala Juma'at mosque, 1986-1993”. He argues that the struggle for ownership and control of Mosque is not a new phenomenon, it has been happening in other parts of the world. He maintains that in the case of Kano it is a new development, it is mostly between Salafi and Sufi adherents.<sup>18</sup> The focus in the study by Kabiru is on the struggle for ownership and control carried out by the Ulama (scholars) in Kano metropolitan, with particularly reference to Tudun Murtala Friday mosque. This study confirms our concern by acknowledging that there exist a contest among Muslim groups in Kano. His documentation of the extent of the disagreement further support our effort which argues that it led to Muslims disagreeing to pray behind some other Muslim worshipers, leading to the emergence of identity based mosques. In Kano city, this particular development supported the spread of Friday prayer mosques, which this particular research is concerned with.

Ibrahim A. Jawondo PhD dissertation titled “The Place of the Mosque in the History of Ilorin Emirate 1823-2000” provides useful information on the history of Islam and mosques with particular reference to Ilorin Emirate. He discusses the administration of mosques and critically analyses how the Ilorin Central Juma’at Mosque has been administered. Emphasizing on mosque administration and its relevance, he traces the factors responsible for the gradual degeneration of the influence of Ilorin Central Mosque. This includes the effect of colonial conquest, participation in politics, and proliferation of religious groups due to desire for political influence and financial gain.<sup>19</sup> Jawondo's study is of equal relevance because it also informed us about the influence of group differences in the proliferation of mosques. Though not within the same location and period of study, it however ascertain that factors as that of political differences do led to the establishment of mosques, including Friday prayer mosques.

Muhammad Kyari in his PhD Dissertation titled “The Establishment and Administration of Friday Mosques in Maiduguri Town, Borno State, 1976 to C. 2000 A.D,” studied Friday

Mosques in Maiduguri town. He looked at the processes of the establishment and method of administration of mosques in Maiduguri. Kyari attributed to population growths as the major factor that led to proliferation of Friday prayer mosques in Maiduguri but also acknowledge the role of differences, which he define as group sentiment.<sup>20</sup> This further supports our effort that in addition to population growth, the factor of differences in perception also contributed to the proliferation of Friday prayer mosques. Such disposition is no doubt an impetus to this study.

In summation, researches on the history of mosques in Kano and mosque as an institution in general have been conducted by scholars and this research has benefitted from their findings. What remain unexplained is the recent developments which produced increase in number of Friday prayer mosques in the city of Kano. Existing studies limited the explanation to increase in population and expansion of Kano. This study is hypothesizing that there are other reasons responsible, especially the recent developments that created identity based Friday mosques in Kano city. It is on this context that this study found relevance.

1.8 THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK

A theory is define to mean a supposition or a system of ideas intended to explain something based on general principles, independent of the phenomenon to be explained.<sup>21</sup> Theory arises from a combination of observation and reflection, from research and from pondering the results of that research. In historical studies theory, and indeed the very processes of research are governed by assumptions and conventions of the age and society in which that research and reflection takes place.<sup>22</sup> On this recognition this study acknowledges the relevance of theory and adapted the Conflict Resolution theory in examining this development.

Conflict Resolution theory was propounded by John Burton, who calls for the adoption of a human needs approach. He argues when an individual or group is denied its fundamental need for identity, security, recognition or equal participation within the society, protracted conflict is inevitable. To resolve such conflict, it is essential that needs that are threatened should be identified and subsequently restructuring of relationships or the social system take place in a way that needs of all individuals and groups are accommodated.

Conflict in our context is defined as a disagreement resulting from incompatible demands between or among two or more groups. Conflicts are as a result of disagreements that lead to tension, within and between people. Conflict Resolution is the process used by groups in conflict to reach a settlement. This process may include method as diverse as contest, battling, conciliation, facilitation, mediation, and negotiation.<sup>23</sup> In Kano city, beginning from about 1978, religious groups emerged and took opposing views on issues of the teachings and practice of the religion. As a consequence to that was witnessed the establishment of mosques and the division of followership based interpretations represented by the groups.

1.9 METHODOLOGY

This is about how data is sourced for the writing of the thesis. Primary and Secondary source materials were used during the course of this research. As such the effort had to comb all the available libraries and archives in search of data. The major source of information for this research was Oral interviews. This was conducted mostly in Kano city with Imams of the various mosques, the traditional rulers, Islamic scholars, community members and the adherents of the various divisions within Islam. Information derived from this source provided the background on which this study strengthened its position. This is important because of the need to corroborate with other sources available in order to analyze and assess, verify and interpret the findings for historical documentation.<sup>24</sup> Also consulted are other forms of primary source materials found in the archives; the National archives Kaduna and the Kano State History and Culture Bureau archives provided great assistance.

Secondary sources in the forms of published and unpublished works academic researches; other academic researches in the forms of articles, journals and projects, which are available on internet, private and public libraries were also used and have assisted greatly. These documents were found in libraries such as Kashim Ibrahim Library (KIL) Ahmadu Bello University (A.B.U), Zaria, Northern History Research Scheme (NHRS) Library A.B.U. Zaria, Undergraduate Library Department of History A.B.U Zaria, Islamic Studies Departmental Library ABU Zaria, Geography Department Library ABU Zaria, History Department Library and Islamic Studies Library at Bayero University Kano, Arewa House Kaduna (AHK), Kano State History and Culture Bureau and Mambayya House Library, Bayero University Kano. Information from these sources was carefully evaluated, assessed before use, with a view to establishing reliability and authenticity of the documents.

1.10 CONCLUSION

Friday Prayer Mosque is one of the most important Islamic institutions, yet it took decades before Kano city, with its huge population and expanse, enjoyed the presence of more than one, located at the center of the city. Every Friday the people of Kano gathered at the Kano central mosque to pray and to also benefit socially, economically and politically. With the emergence of religious groups and organizations particularly from 1978, Friday mosque started to grow in number and also serving as symbol of group identity in Kano city. This chapter examined this phenomenon and justified it as the main factor behind the spread and proliferation as well as divisions among Muslims on possession of Friday prayer mosques in the city.

CHAPTER TWO

INTRODUCTION OF ISLAM AND THE ESTABLISHMENT OF FRIDAY PRAYER

MOSQUES IN KANO CITY, 1359-1992

2.1 INTRODUCTION

According to historical records, Islam in West Africa flourished through trade relations and interaction between the Arab people and the people of other cultures. The city in West Africa is the primary center for the itinerant scholars from North and East Africa. The spread and growth of Islam came as a result of the interaction between Muslim Arabs and the West African people. This brought some permanent socio-cultural changes and progress in the region. It is important to note that, Islam is a religion that encourages the search for and spread of knowledge. This became a sort of encouragement for the Africans whose desire for knowledge, to read and write as well as to keep records when the need aroused.<sup>25</sup> Islam is said to have been introduced into Kano by the Wangarawa merchants in the second half of the fourteenth century. There is however some indication that Islam had reached Hausaland through contacts with Bornu much earlier.<sup>26</sup>

With the introduction of Islam in c. 610 AD., the mosque became the venue or place for worship and Islamic studies among Muslims. The first place of worship in the history of Islam for Muslims is the Masjid Haram in Mecca. The Haram surrounds the Ka'aba (house of Allah), serving as Qibla (direction) where all Muslims must face when performing prayers. The Ka'aba is therefore one of the sacred structures in Islam. It unites all Muslims in the world, whether Sunni or Shiite, without an iota of ambiguity, to a common Qibla for the purpose of the worship of Allah. In fact, the Haram plays the most important role of housing Muslim worshippers performing the annual pilgrimage (Hajj).<sup>27</sup>The first mosque built by Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H), Masjid Quba in Madinah in 622 A.D, served as the first school, community hall, and court of law. Mosques have therefore, social and political importance in Islamic societies. Historically, ka'abah was the first place of worship that attracted adoration and respect of the Muslims. The second Mosque was that of Madinah which was constructed immediately after the Muhajirun arrived in the city of Madina in 622 A.D. Since then mosques were built from Ka'abah, the Masjid Aqsa, the Masjid Quba and the Masjid Al-Madinat in different continents and countries. In Africa the First Mosque built was that of old Cairo (Al-Fustat) by Amr ibn al-As (one of the companions of the Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H) and the conqueror of Egypt for Islam in 641 A.D. The second one was Qayrawan Mosque built in Tunisia by Amr ibn al-As.<sup>28</sup>

However, it is not clear when the first Mosque in Kano was built. Available information suggests that it must have been after the conversion of Sarki Yaji into Islam in 1359. The Mosque that was built by Sarki Yaji was therefore the first mosque, located at Anguwar Juma. The ward was named Juma ward because it was the only mosque in Kano where Juma'at (Friday) prayer was said.<sup>29</sup>This Mosque is said to have perhaps been located at the site of the present day Madabo Mosque, near Dala Hill. It provided Kano rulers with the opportunity to restrain the influence of traditional religious practices on the people.<sup>30</sup> The second one was built in 1494 during the reign of Sarki Muhammadu Rumfa.<sup>31</sup>Notwithstanding, the first major development in the history of mosque in Kano was the rebuilding and extension of the Kano

2.2 The Introduction of Islam in Kano and the Establishment of Friday Prayer Mosques 1359-1952

The presence of Islam in West Africa is of considerable antiquity, dating back to the 8th century A.D, or even earlier. It was said that, Islam penetrated into the entire parts of West African sub-region through the extreme Western parts of the area i.e. from al-maghrif al-aqsa. Smith argues that, Islam could also have penetrated into some parts of West Africa through the Lake Chad region independent of that of the extreme part of North Western Africa. There are also reasons to believe that Islam had reached the Central regions of West Africa, specifically, Hausaland through the Central Sahara regions.<sup>33</sup>

Historically, the exact time when Islam was first introduced into Kano was not known.<sup>34</sup> It is generally accepted that the religion of Islam made its first inroads into Hausaland, sometimes, around the fourteenth century. The arrival of Islam to Hausaland is, to a large extent, attributed to certain migrant group called the Wangarawa from Mali.<sup>35</sup> Islam was said to have been introduced into Kano by the Wangarawa in the second half of the fourteenth century.<sup>36</sup> But linguistic evidence has suggested that early influences of Islamic faith came from the East, through Kanem and Borno.<sup>37</sup>

However, the earliest records of the construction of mosques in Kano dates back to the fourteenth century when Islam was said to have been introduced by the Wangarawa. The Wangarawa having introduced the religion, Islam, in Kano, influenced the establishment of mosque. This was in line with the tradition of Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H), where he built mosque in Madina after the Hijra (migration). The significance also lies in their effort to promote the spread of Islam in Hausaland. In the 14th century, they had established themselves in several parts of Hausaland, notably Kebbi, Gobir, Katsina and Kano.<sup>38</sup>

2.2.1 Sarki Ali Yaji (1359-1385)

Historically, migration and movements of people from one place to another in search of means of livelihood has been part of human activities. The migration of Wangarawa into Kano from Mali was as a result of political and economic development as well as the persistent crisis in the area. As a result of this crisis, development were shifted towards the eastern periphery of the empires – Timbuktu, Gao and Jenne, where the rulers of Mali were not in the position to effectively control them. Hausaland and Takedda were also pulling away trade just as they were doing to Kanem. The rulers of Mali also launched several attacks in order to arrest the situation. Many scholars and traders from Gao were said to have left for Timbuktu and probably also Hausaland.<sup>39</sup>

The role of traditional rulers in the development of Islam in West Africa was remarkable. Islam played an important role in the emergence of powerful rulers. The emergence of powerful and famous rulers whether in Mali, Shonghai, Katsina, Kano, Borno and elsewhere in the Sahel and Savanna regions in the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries, was very closely associated with the introduction of Islam into the States.<sup>40</sup> In 1343 Tsamuya the Sarki of Kano was killed by Usman Zamnagawa, who in turn was succeeded by Yaji.<sup>41</sup> The eleventh Sarki of Kano was Yaji (1349-1385), called Ali. He drove the Sarkin Rano from Zamma Gaba, went to Rano and reigned at Bunu two years. Then he moved to Kur together with the Ajawa and Worjawa and Awwa, he stayed there.<sup>42</sup> Therefore, Sarki Yaji was considered the first Sarki of Kano to accept Islam and he gave instructions that people should pray and build a mosque.<sup>43</sup>

The reign of Yaji was considered as the first period of Islam in the history of Kano. In Yaji's time the Wangarawa scholars came from Mali and brought the Islamic religion, he warmly received them. Abdurrahman Zaita was their leader, others were Yakubu, Mandawari. They numbered about forty in all. When they came they advised the Sarki to observe the five daily prayers and he complied. As a result of this, Gurdumus was appointed as Imam, and Lawan his Mu'azzin. Mandawari was appointed as the Imam of all the Wangarawa and chief Imam of Kano, and Zaita was their Alkali (judge). Auta cut the throats of whatever flesh was eaten. With this development, the Sarki gave orders that every town in Kano country should observe the five daily prayers and they did so.<sup>44</sup> One might argue that, Kano was declared Islamic state since the reign of Yaji contrary to the saying that it was declared Islamic States during the reign of Muhammadu Rumfa.

Furthermore, with the conversion of Sarki Yaji dan Tsamuya (1349-1385) to Islam by a group of missionaries from Mali, the first Mosque was built beneath the then existing pagansacred tree known as Shamus.<sup>45</sup> The first mosque was built in 1359 when Sarki Yaji became fully devoted to Islam. This mosque was located at Unguwar Juma (Juma ward), the area was named after the Mosque, i.e Juma'ah Mosque ward this is the evidence that the Friday prayer mosque was built in Kano during the reign of Sarki Yaji. This ward is perhaps located to the north of Madabo ward near Dala Hill where the then Habe rulers lived.<sup>46</sup> However, during the reign of Sarkin Kano Kaneji (1390-1410) who reverted to the worship of idols, the mosque was not demolished or abandoned and the Muslims continued worshipping there.<sup>47</sup>

However, after the mosque was established in Juma ward and five daily prayers were being observed in the mosques, Sarkin Garazawa began to oppose the decision made by Sarki Yaji. The Garazawa and his followers would come and defile the mosque and covered it with filth, when the Muslims had prayed and gone back to their homes. As a result of this, Dan Buji was appointed to patrol the mosque with armed men from morning to evening. Garazawa and his followers tried to win Dan Buji and his followers, he refused together with some of his men, but some followed them. When the defilement of the mosque continued Sheshe and Fa-Mori announced that, 'there is no remedy against the pagans except prayer', and the people agreed. They gathered one Sunday night in the mosque and prayed from sunset to sunrise. Their prayer was answered. The leader of the pagans and all the people who participated in the defilement of the mosque and their women were struck blind. After that the pagans were all afraid and Yaji dispossessed the chief of the pagans from his office saying to him, 'Be thou chief of the blind.'<sup>48</sup>

2.2.2 Sarki Muhammad Rumfa (1463-1499)

During Sarki Yakubu (1452-1463) there are records of a considerable Fulani and Wangara influx from Mali that settled in Kano city. They brought religious books and many of them were passed on to Bornu. Many Kanuri people came to settle in Kano and the city's trading prosperity increased further. Yakubu was succeeded by his son Muhammad Rumfa. Rumfa, one of the greatest emirs of Kano; 'he can have no equal in might, from the time of the founding of Kano until it shall end'.<sup>49</sup> The reign of Sarki Rumfa was a turning point in the history of Islam in Kano. It was also regarded as the second phase in the Islamization of Kano. Even though the religion had already existed in Kano for at least one hundred years before the beginning of this period, the impact of his reign on the socio-political scene was of considerable importance.<sup>50</sup>

Sarki Muhammadu Rumfa was influenced by Al-Maghili to made changes on the socio-political and religious sectors in Kano.

“Among the innovation of Muhammadu Rumfa credited to the influence of Al-Maghili were the extension of the city walls, the appointment of eunuchs to public office, the introduction of kulle or purdah for women, the celebration of id-al-Kabir, the custom of parading the unmounted horses for the emir, the destruction of the tree worshipped by the traditional believers and the construction of a mosque on its site, the appointment of Qadis to run sharia courts and the building of city market”<sup>51</sup>

The second Friday prayer Mosque was built during the reign of Rumfa in 1494. Before he built this mosque he used to observe his prayers at Unguwar Juma Friday mosque because it was the residential area of the King in those days which was later relocated to the Wudilawa. After its relocation he built Friday mosque, it was said that, this mosque was located in the eastern part of his house , and was sited between Kofar Nassarawa and the “N.A. Yaro” or “N.A. workshop”, i.e. the present Kano Urban Water Supply Office. He built the house of the Imam and Mu'azzin near the mosque. After the completion of this mosque the Sarki asked one of his servants to announce to the people that, Friday prayer will henceforth be observed in the new mosque. Malam Abubakar who was the Imam of the mosque led people in prayer, in his first sermon he cited one of the Qur'anic verses says:

“Wa annal masajida lillahi falaa tadiuu maállahi ahada”<sup>52</sup> Meaning “and the places of worship (mosque) are for Allah (alone), so invoke not anyone along with Him (Allah).”<sup>53</sup>

It is important however to note that, by the time Shaykh al-Maghili arrived in Kano during the reign of Rumfa, Islam had already been embraced by some people.<sup>54</sup> Therefore, Al-Maghili further instructed Rumfa to build another Friday mosque whose minaret that should stand on the site of the sacred tree Shamus. Shaykh al-Maghili left his children in Kano and travelled to Songhai, among them were Isa (Sidi Fari) for whom he left his Holy Qur'an, rosary, sword, kettle, staff and scales. The Sidi Fari dynasty has continued to provide the Sharifs of Kano and has kept the family heirlooms.<sup>55</sup> Muhammad Abdal-Karim Al-Maghili, an Algerian scholar, was the most important driving force in influencing Rumfa to embark on his reform.<sup>56</sup>

2.2.3 Sarki Abdullahi Bayero (1926-52)

During the reign of Sarki Muhammad Zaki Dan Kisoki (1582-1618) the site of the main Mosque was changed from the location chosen by Muhammadu Rumfa. However, on the order of Sultan Muhammad Bello (d.1837), the Mosque was rebuilt on the original foundation by

Sarki Sulaiman b. Abahama (1807-1819), a Fulani ruler after the Jihad. The qibla (direction) of the mosque was re-adjusted during the reign of Sarki Abdullahi dan Dabo (1855-83). The mosque was demolished in the 1940's by the Emir of Kano, Abdullahi Bayero (1926-52). The present oriental looking Kano Central Mosque was modeled after a Mosque Abdullahi Bayero saw in the Sudan on his way to Mecca. This action encouraged a number of influential and wealthy individuals to demolish traditional Mosques and replaced them with concrete structures whenever the opportunity arose.<sup>57</sup>

The establishment of the Emirate System of government saw the relocation of the central mosque for the second time from its former site chosen by Muhammadu Rumfa (between Kofar Nasarawa and the present Kano Urban Water Supply Office), to the present location. Zahradden has identified two factors which accounted for this development. One was to bring the mosque closer to the Emir who was both the political and spiritual leader and secondly to have a definite break away from the pre-Jihad period. The later reason appears to be more convincing because the early period of the Jihad was immediately accompanied by systematic application of Shariah and rejection of many things which appeared to be contrary to Islamic injunctions. The Kano leadership might have perceived the old mosque as sanctuary where Allah was not worshipped as was supposed to be. Therefore by relocating the mosque to a different location it was assumed that, all un-Islamic practices that might have been associated with it could be brought to an end.<sup>58</sup> Evidently, according to Alkali Sufi, the present Kano city mosque was built during the reign of the first Fulani Emir Sulaiman b. Abahama (1807-1819), because of the adjustment of qibla (face for prayer) by Shehu Dan Fodio's brother, Abdullahi Gwandu.<sup>59</sup>

The first major development in the history of Mosque development in Kano during the twentieth century was the rebuilding and extension of the Kano central mosque during the reign of Sarki Abdullahi Bayero (1926-52). The present stone built mosque replaced the old one built of mud. The Emir, the Kano community, as well as the colonial government contributed generously to the building.<sup>60</sup> A small committee consisting of scholars and policy makers was formed headed by Sir Muhammad Sanusi (the then Chiroman Kano). Alhaji Alhassan Dantata was appointed as treasurer. The Emir personally donated (£7,000.00) seven thousand pounds. Alhassan Dantata initially donated (£1,000.00) one thousand pounds and then gave another (£400) four hundred pounds on behalf of his family. He additionally donated (£1,000.00) one thousand pounds. Alhaji Muhammad Goda donated (£100) one hundred pounds, to mention but a few. The construction was supervised by the Provincial Engineer. Mr. W.A Dow. The mosque was formally opened in February 1951 by Emir Abdullahi Bayero in the presence of Nigeria's then Governor General, Sir John Macpherson and Emirs from other Emirates.<sup>61</sup>

2.3 The Functions of the Mosque in Islam and the People of Kano

Throughout history, the mosque has served as a centre for education, legal procedures/judiciary court, counseling, life-cycle celebrations, public communication, and political mobilization. Mosques have over the past many centuries also acted as public institutions, medical schools, hostels and universities. Before the advent of modern transportation, mosques were seen as a gateway for traders. As a centre for intellectual activities, the mosque may act as a forum for political ideas that seems to challenge major contemporary problems like corruption, inefficiency and nepotism that engulfed many modern states. The mosque also served as a meeting place and a focus for socialization within the Muslim community.<sup>62</sup> It is important to maintain that, mosques can be used for other religious spiritual practices; it does not in any form affect its sacred function.

2.3.1 Mosque as a Spiritual Centre

The primary function of the mosque as a centre of observance of prayer is more important in Islam.<sup>63</sup> Prayer which is second in the hierarchy of the pillars of the religion is believed to be a means of purifying the souls of the Muslims and of keeping them away from the evils of the world. Besides, it is believed to be a distinguishing factor between the Muslims and the non-Muslims. Other activities were carried out in the mosque include the reading of the Holy Qur'an, supplication and retreat (Itikaf) for meditation about God through His attributes and the litanies of the different mystically inclined religious brotherhoods such as the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah. The spiritual retreat as well as the translation of the Holy Qur'an is said to be common among the Muslims especially during the Ramadan fast.<sup>64</sup> In the case of the Kano, Itikaf, reading and translation of the Holy Qur'an, litanies were carried out in some of the mosques.

2.3.2 Mosque as a Centre for Educational Development

Education was an important part of the transmission, creation, and consolidation of a worldview that placed the teacher, the student, and the materials in their proper cosmological relations.<sup>65</sup>

“The teacher’s place of teaching should be the Masjid (mosque) which is better than the home or the school. This is in order to ensure that all people benefit, since the mosque is their meeting point, unlike the home or the school which are attended only by those who want to read. This is also in conformity with the (practice) of the predecessors. (May Allah be pleased with them).”<sup>66</sup>

The Mosque is seen as the first and original Islamic Institution throughout the Muslim World. The first Mosque built by Prophet (PBUH) in Madinah served as a centre for educational exhortation and studies in Islamic theology. The Prophet (PBUH) did this through the conveyance of God’s messages, clarification of their meanings through sermons, lectures and addresses. Some institutions of learning like University of Damashq in Syria, Al-Azhar University in Egypt and Islamic University of Bahawal of Pakistan started as Mosques. About the late 4th and the beginning of the 5th Islamic century, teaching and learning became formalized and extended out of the Mosque. For instance, there was the rise of Maktab (private lesson) and Dar al-Ilm (house of learning) built by Shii government in Cairo, Bayt-al-Hikma, Da ul Kutub and Nisamiyya.<sup>67</sup>

Islamic learning also started in the Mosque in West Africa before schools were established. Still teaching and learning took place in both. For instance, the great Friday mosques of Ghana, Mali, Songhai, Borno, Sankore, Timbuktu and Jenne were the major training centers for the clerics, other Muslims and their children. In the Nigerian Regions, various Jihad leaders established one type of Mosque or another which served as social, educational and religious centers. People gathered to study books from Shaykh Usman Danfodiyo, Abdullahi Fodiyo and Muhammad Bello in their Mosques.<sup>68</sup> In the case of Kano Mosques, the annual tafsir sessions are still being held during the Month of Ramadan. The birth day of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH), commonly called Maulud, is also celebrated in some of them. Sufi litanies are also recited in some of the Mosques as well.<sup>69</sup> In the case of the Kano city mosques, lectures and seminars were carried out in some of the mosques occasionally.

2.3.3 The Mosque as a Nerve Centre for the Socio-Economic Development of Kano

Islam is a religion that covers every aspect of life at individual, communal and international levels. The Mosque brings together all the social strata of the society to a common venue on equal terms. Therefore, all social barriers are automatically removed as people stand in rows shoulder to shoulder to offer Salah (prayer) behind a single leader, the Imam.<sup>70</sup> Al-Nadwi further explains: “Nowhere is the majesty of the Lord more manifested than in the Mosque. It is here that no special privilege is enjoyed by anyone; the master and the servant, the ruler and the ruled and the rich and the poor are all alike.” It brings together Muslims of diverse cultural backgrounds and makes them feel at home regardless of their differences.<sup>71</sup>

However, the Mosque also served as a hospital. According to Mishad, the Prophet used the Mosque as a hospital during emergencies such as treating the wounded and sick. For instance, it was reported in one of the tradition (Hadith) of the Prophet (PBUH), Sa’ad bin Mu’az, one of the companions of the Prophet was nursed in the Mosque. There were several cases of nursing of sick the women by Rafida al-Aslamiya also in the Mosque. Awsis (perhaps a tribe) was acknowledged by Pedersen that they tended their wounded in the Prophet's Mosque.<sup>72</sup>

The Mosque also served as a place for the solemnization of marriages as it was reported to have conducted during the lifetime of the Prophet and it continued after his demise. Some people are of the view that, the marriage ceremonies were conducted in the Mosque in order to give it the needed publicity. According to Samb, in Senagalese any marriage conducted without the involvement of the Mosque is invalid. Many other important notifications and notices were declared in the mosque. The Mosque had also been used for oath taking because an oath taken in the Mosque was particularly binding. This belief must have been arrived at because of the belief of the Muslims that the Mosque is a house of God.<sup>73</sup> In the city of Kano, Friday mosques are also used for performing marriage contracts as well as naming ceremonies.

Furthermore, since the lifetime of the Prophet, Mosque served as a centre for reconciliation between or among disputing friends, families, tribes and conflicting parties among Muslims or between Muslims and Christians or Jews. These situations are usually listened to and tried in the Mosque. Decisions are made and laws are given out from the mosque. Apart from that, Prophet discussed important matters and dispensed justice at a special place beside the Ka'abah named Dar al-Nadwa. In Islam, staying to receive people who pay condolence visits in the Mosque is said to have been practiced. It was said that, in some places particularly Persia, it was the tradition of the family of the deceased to stay in the Mosque during the day for three days to receive condolences.<sup>74</sup> In Kano, disputes between or among Muslim friends and families were resolved in some of the mosques and the tradition of the family to stay in the mosque to receive condolences was practiced in some of the mosques.

Beside all the above mentioned events, the celebration of the Prophet's birthday and that of the mystics such as Shaykh Ahmad Tijani, Abdul-Qadir, Sanusi and others was done in the mosque. During these occasions, several poems and songs of praise would be sung in honour of the Prophet (PBUH) and the Shaykhs. It is important however to note and stresses that all of these social activities took place in the mosque because Muslims believe that all activities performed in the mosque with pure intention of keeping Islam and the Ummah (community) are acts of Ibadah (worship) and thus receive the blessing of Allah.<sup>75</sup> The annual celebrations of the Prophets' birthday and that of Shaykh Ahmad Tijani and Abdulkadir are still being practiced in some of the mosques in Kano.

Furthermore, the mosque served as a Zakat (obligatory Tax) collection centre since the early period of Islam, especially during the Caliph period of Umar b. Khattab to the time when Islam spread widely across the length and breadth of the world. Zakat is the third pillar of Islam that requires Muslims to give a certain proportion of their wealth in charity annually. Able and willing Muslims may give voluntary charities at any time in the mosque. Since mosques form the centre of Muslim communities, Muslims both give and collect Zakat in the mosque. That was the practice of the Prophet. The Mosque thus served as a distributing centre.<sup>76</sup> Mosque also used as a centre for sharing inheritance among the legal heirs. It also performed state functions like turbaning the Muslim leaders and remembering them in prayers (supplications).<sup>77</sup>

2.3.4 The Mosque as an Institution for Political Development

It was inherent in the character of Islam that religion and politics could not be separated. Islamically, the Imam of a Friday Mosque is the leader and chief administrator in terms of politics and religion.<sup>78</sup> The weekly sermon (Khudba)<sup>79</sup> delivered by the Imams in the Mosques on Friday has become a useful instrument in socio-political agenda right from the introduction of Islam. It was used by nationalist movements during anti-colonial struggles (in South Africa), and then by postcolonial states for legitimizing and justifying development, modernization, or simply for power. The sermon provides an audience; it is symbolic, and an impressionable means of sending messages to the general public. It is a public platform for a leader to make a weekly statement and an occasion for people to listen to some words of wisdom, admonition, and remembrance.<sup>80</sup> In Kano, the Imams of Friday prayer mosques are used sermon as a medium through which the public are enlightened and information is passed to the general public.

According to G. Von Grunebaum, in Hausaland the Friday Mosque and Market were the main institutions. They served as the focal points in the developed city or town. The Friday Mosque as the spiritual center is in general appropriately placed along the main road for itinerant scholars. The palace of the ruler or the official residence of his deputy was built closed to the Friday Mosque. The Friday mosque is the political as well as the religious center of the settlement.<sup>81</sup> The Kano central mosque was positioned in Kano city and the Emir palace was built closed to the mosque.

In Nigeria, during the Sokoto Jihad (1804-1809), the Mosque was the safest meeting point for the Jihadists. The Jihadists converged there to design and discuss strategic plans for war and to take some important decisions, review and assess their plans. In the same vein, after the establishment of the Sokoto caliphate, mosques remain the reference point. For example, when Chaliph Abubakar Atiku (1837-1842), the second Caliph of Sokoto Caliphate, died, Muslims were summoned in the Shehu's mosque under the leadership of Khalil b. Abdullahi b. Fudi to choose Caliph Aliyu as the third Caliph. And when he was later found wanting in the leadership of the Caliphate, a meeting was held in the same mosque to guide him aright.<sup>82</sup> In Kano, during the reign of Emir Ibrahim Dabo (1819-1846), the mosque was used as center for mobilisation and recruitment of military as order by the Caliph Muhammadu Bello (1817-1837).<sup>83</sup>

2.4 The Development of Religious Movements and the Emergence of Intellectual Discord among the Ulama in Kano City

Historically, in Nigeria the background of Muslim groups, sects and orientations were very complicated. The Qadiriyyah Sufi order which was believed to be the oldest group in Islamic Sufi brotherhoods in Kano and West Africa in general, participated in spreading Islam in that area as a result of the Sokoto Jihad in Hausaland in 1804, that was led by Shaykh Usman Dan Fodio who was also believed to be a follower of the Qadiriyyah. The Tijjaniyyah order came to Nigeria later and established itself in Kano, because it was accepted by the Madabawa Ulama, and also some of the ruling class during the reign of Sarki Muhammad Abbas (1903-1919).

Muslim identity and thought in Nigeria were derived from the Sufi brotherhoods of Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah, primarily as a result of the historical role of the Kanem-Borno and Sokoto Caliphates in the spread of Islam in the 19th century. In the 20th century the Sufi orders and the Izalatul Bidia'a wa Ikhamatis Sunnah (People Committed to the Removal of Innovations in Islam); commonly called Izala, are the two dominant contemporary Muslim sects struggling for influence and identity.<sup>84</sup> The significance of these movements was that, the issue of who was a Muslim and who was not had re-emerged once more in Islamic history. The substance of the debate was based on the type of religious practices and the rituals that were performed by Muslims as part of the religion.<sup>85</sup> This issue became serious during the twentieth century among followers and a reason to separate mosques as well for accusing non-belief on each other. With this development however, the conflicting scholars struggle for influence, identity, ownership and control of Friday prayer mosques in Kano.

The Qadiriyyah Sufi Brotherhood in Kano

The Qadiriyyah<sup>86</sup> came to Borno, located in the north east of the country, through the Sahara trade during the 12th and 13th centuries. After the jihād of Shaykh Usman Dan Fodio (1804) who was the member of the Tariqa, it was established as the dominant Tariqa in the Sokoto Caliphate. The Qadiriyyah order contributed to the expansion of Islam in West Africa. The Qadiriyyah affiliation helped the Jihadists around Shaykh Dan Fodio during the war. Dan Fodio himself introduced many followers to the Tariqa, Abdullahi, Dan Fodio's brother, as well Muhammad Bello, his son, were members of the Qadiriyyah. All of the Jihad leaders and Emirs sent or appointed after the Jihad were also followers of Qadiriyyah. In Kano Emir Sulaiman was appointed to be the leader and Imam.<sup>87</sup> By the time Sultan Muhammad Bello died, the Qadiriyyah was at its peak. It was the brotherhood that had the total control and monopoly of almost all the Imams, Judges, and scholars in Hausaland. With this development, one can easily say that the substantial population of Hausaland could be regarded as having followed the Qadiriyyah doctrine.<sup>88</sup>

Before Nigeria's Independence, the Qadiriyyah Sufi order started transforming in Kano. It achieved tremendous success few years after the independence of Nigeria in 1960. Before the independence, the Qadiriyya in Kano relied heavily on the writings of the earlier scholars of the movement particularly the Jihadists, as the major sources of its doctrines. The leaders who reformed Qadiriyyah in Kano were highly creative writers, like the Fulani jihad writers. Sheikh Nasiru Kabara who was among the contemporary Qadiriyyah writers, were concerned with connecting classical Islamic thoughts to local circumstances. The newly reformed Qadiriyyah followers had the same interests to expand the movement. The reorientation and reforming of the movement were achieved by the establishment of new links independent of Sokoto and the old allegiance. Sheikh Nasiru Kabara did not only produced literature to reform Qadiriyyah in Kano but revived an interest of the works of Jihad leaders and introduced works on Qadiriyyah from the Arab world.<sup>89</sup> With the emergence of reformed Qadiriyyah under the leadership of Shaikh Nasiru Kabara independent of that of the popular one in Sokoto, traditional scholars of Qadiriyyah in Kano described him as an "innovator" (bidi'a) and considered him as a threat to popular belief of the the Tariqa.

The Tijjaniyyah Sufi Brotherhood in Kano

The Tijjaniyyah<sup>90</sup> became an influential Sufi order in West Africa especially after the jihad movement of al-Hajj Umar against the French colonial expansion in the mid-1850s. In Nigeria, the advent of the Tijjaniyyah is related to al-Hajj Umar's visit to the country, although some views confirmed the presence of this Sufi order in Kano and Borno as early as the time of Aḥmad al-Tijani, the founder. Umar Tall contributed to the spread of the brotherhood as he initiated many people into it. During his stay in Sokoto, he seemed to have initiated Muhammad Bello to the Tijjaniyyah. However, this claim is still controversial. Furthermore, the initiation of many people to the Tijjaniyyah in different parts of the north (especially in Zaria, Kano, Borno, and Sokoto) contributed to its spread.<sup>91</sup>

By the time Tijjaniyyah was introduced in Kano, it became very acceptable and popular, as a result of some of its leading Ulama such as the Madabawa, who came to be identified with it. The consolidation of Tijjaniyyah became more apparent in Kano with the conversion of the ruling dynasty during the reign of Sarki Muhammad Abbas (1903-1919). Since then its strength and influence have always been increasing considerably.<sup>92</sup> However, in the 19th century and even during the colonial era, the Tijjaniyyah Sufi brotherhood faced serious threats in Kano, within the members of the movement on one hand and the Qadiriyyah movement on other hand. The dispute was between the Salgawa and Madabawa school of thought with the movement and the struggle for influence and identity between the Tijjaniyyah and the well-established Qadiriyyah.

<sup>90</sup> There are a lot of literatures on the Tijjaniyyah Sufi order some of these works included the work of Salisu Bala. The Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah Sufi orders are both parts of Sufism. “Sufism is the mystical dimension of Islam based on the esoteric understanding of the Qur’an”, and the goal of each Sufi is to emulate their saints, in order to show their level of commitment and to observe the same rituals and practices performed by their saint.<sup>93</sup> The Qadiriyya, founded by Sheikh Abdul Qadir al-Jilani (1077-1166), was the first Tariqa in Nigeria between 12th and 13th centuries. The Tijjanyyah, which was second Tariqa, was founded by Sheikh Ahmad Tijjani (1735-1815) and its spread was attributed to the Jihad of Al-Hajj Umar.

2.4.1 The Development of Intellectual Discord among the Sufi Brotherhoods in Kano City 1950-1970

It is important to note that, the period between 1937 and 1970 marked a turning point in the intellectual history of Kano, because the leaders of the two Brotherhood movements, the Qadiriyyah and the Tijjaniyyah, seemed to lose their track as a result of the rising opposition and the increasing tension at all fronts. In view of this, the leaders appeared to have concentrated all their attention and activities on issues not central to the primary objectives of their movements. Religious teaching, preaching the doctrines of Islam, scholarship, learning and Islamic literary activity among the Ulama were not the main focus within these movements. They devoted themselves to the conduct of the rituals relating to prayer, performing death rites and other social activities of the Muslim community. With regards to the prayer, for instance, there emerged some major differences on such issues, like Qablu<sup>94</sup> and Sadlu<sup>95 96</sup>.

The crisis led to the breakup of the Tijjaniyyah movement into two antagonistic groups in the 1930s, under the leaderships of the Madabawa and the Salgawa scholars. The Madabawa

Ulama in alliance with Qadirawa scholars opposed the Salgawa School for its rejection of Sadakokin Mutuwa (funeral alms, charity) and other related rituals. The Salgawa were also attacked for showing their preference and the subsequent adoption of the practice of Qablu, instead of the more familiar Sadlu which was regarded as the popular choice of scholars of Borno and Hausaland since the introduction of Islam into those areas. With the demise of Muhammad Salga and the appearance of Shaykh Ibrahim Kaulaha around 1938-51 that showed preference to Salgawa school of thought, the crisis in the Tijjaniyyah became even more pronounced, leading to a crack in the Qadiriyyah movement. This was as a result of the rise of Shaykh Nasiru Kabara with his revitalization programs which appeared independent of the more acknowledged leadership of the movement in Sokoto.<sup>97</sup>

Shaykh Kabara started his revitalization campaigns in the Qadiriyyah movement. He introduced the celebration of the birthday of Shaykh Abdulkadir Jilani (Maukibi), the founder of the order, and the use of Bandir (Tambourine like drum) to attract more attention. His attempt to revitalize the Qadiriyyah along these lines brought him into conflict with other leaders of the movement, but particularly those who were from the Sokoto aristocracy. They regarded him as an innovator (bid'i) and a threat to their position. The differences between Shaykh Nasiru Kabara and other leaders of the movement, on one hand, and the non-Salgawa followers of the Tijjaniyyah, on the other, did not prevent them from uniting to oppose Shaykh Ibrahim Kaulaha and his followers.<sup>98</sup>

The debate among scholars on the status of Qablu and Sadlu seemed to be of concern, because of the constant clashes among ignorant Muslims, which some occasionally led to bloodshed as a result of differences of opinion on the issue. Some of the followers refused to pray behind an Imam who stood with arms uncrossed, and the position of arms at prayer became an even clearer sign of brotherhood allegiance. The attempt to establish the actual status of the practice of Sadlu and Qablu led to the emergence of four different groups. There were scholars who held the view that, the practice of Sadlu was Sunnah and while that of Qablu was bid'a. The second groups were of the opinion that, only Qablu was Sunnah and Sadlu was bid'a. The third group believed that both Qablu and Sadlu were Sunnah and could be both practiced interchangeably. Members of the last group recognized both practices as Halal (lawful), but insisted that, it is Makruh (reprehensive) to observe the practice of Qablu in Sallar Farilla (obligatory prayer). According to them, it is better if one could restrict it to Sallar Nafila (optional prayer).<sup>99</sup>

The Sufi dispute over hegemony and followers within the Muslim community took on a political dimension during the 1950s. This can be seen through the debate on the identification of many Tijaniya youths with the political party, Northern Elements Progressive Union (NEPU), and the reaction to that by Ahmadu Bello's Northern People's Congress (NPC) as well as by other religious leaders. The Tijjaniyyah leader Shaykh Ibrahim Niasse tended to pray with Qablu while Shaykh Nasiru Kabara preferred Sadlu. This became a political issue among adherents and a reason to divide mosques as well as for blaming kufir (non-belief) on each other during the 1950s and 1960s. The discourse consisted of finding proof for each point of view in the tradition of the Prophet. This controversy was used by Sardauna Ahmadu Bello in his political program. The political leader tended to condemn Qablu and distanced himself from Ibrahim Niasse as well from the NEPU. This pragmatic choice reflects Bello's interest in avoiding any obstacles blocking his political agenda of "one North". The Qablu-Sadlu-controversy came to an end in the mid-1960s. In the following years it became a minor issue particularly with the appearance of Shaykh Abubakar Mahmud Gumi as an opponent to the Sufis and Sufism.<sup>100</sup>

The rivalry between the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah was largely due to their struggle for influence in Northern Nigeria. Both brotherhoods attempted to attract more followers. Over time both developed two different indications of identity. The Qadiriyyah was (and is) related to the Sokoto Caliphate. This gave it the opportunity to be in the centre of events. The Qadiriyyah was the Sufi order associated with the state. It was then the order of the political elite within the NPC. The Tijjaniyyah was presumed to be a symbol of rebellion against established structures and a symbol of opposition. The link between Tijjaniyyah and the NEPU is intelligible. The ideology of the party and its founder (Aminu Kano) was based on criticism of the elites in the North as well as of the authority of the Emirs and the colonial administration. No wonder that NEPU was perceived as a symbol of opposition in the North as was the case with the Tijjaniyyah.<sup>101</sup>

However, the bone of contention in the period 1937 and 1970 was based on the interpretation and understanding of Islamic religious practices and social behavior of the community. As a result of this, the scholars of the Sufi brotherhood movements, the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah during this period struggle for influence and identity in Kano and to have more followers. Despite the fact that, there were issues raised on the actual status of Sadlu and Qablu that led to the refusal of some of the members of the Sufi orders to pray behind the Imam that practiced either Qablu or Sadlu. During this period, one interesting point to emphasize was that, there was no Friday mosque built in Kano city, because the Khutba sermon delivered in the Kano central mosque has never reflected its' Imam preference to either Qadiriyyah or Tijjaniyyah Brotherhoods.

2.4.2 The Emergence of Religious Organizations and the Struggle against Sufi Followers 1970-1991

The emergence of more religious organizations marked the end of Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah discord. Because of the numerous challenges posed by religious organization, like the Izala the Sufi adherents found it necessary to unite in order to face common threats to their survival. In the mid-1960s there were a lot of developments that were carried out in Nigeria. Nigeria got its independence during this period, followed by the death of the Ahmadu Bello Sardauna of Sokoto, and also the outbreak of the civil war. It was also in this period Muslims in Nigeria witnessed the emergence of new religious organizations like Izala in 1978, and the emergence of Jama'at Tajdid al-Islamy in 1995 which splitted from Muslim Brothers.

By the time the leaders of the Tariqa movements were busy fighting among themselves, the questions being raised by people, followers and non-followers alike, became very difficult for them to answer. This led to the emergence of new ideas, and the rise in scholarship, learning, and the search for knowledge. At this point in time, Kano witnessed the rise of the 'liberal' scholars who made some impact and with the help of party politics, carried people away with them. These new ideas and challenges received impetus from certain important influences which were taking shape in Kano. During the Second World War, the pilgrimage route from West Africa (via Tripoli) along the Mediterranean was closed. The over-land route from Kano to Khartoum, however, remained open and several Muslim leaders in West Africa visited Kano en route to Mecca. On the eve of independence in the late 1950's, the pilgrimage became one of the major activities which brought the Muslims of Northern Nigeria into contact with the rest of the world. The establishment of an airport in Kano greatly contributed in exposing the Ulama to new

Islamic literature and ideas, which were mainly coming from Sa'udi Arabia, Pakistan, Egypt, Sudan and other Muslim countries.<sup>102</sup>

The Jama'atu Izalatu Bid'a Wa Iqamatus Sunnah in Kano

The criticisms against the Sufi Brotherhoods which later led to direct attacks on the doctrines of Sufism were initially started by Shaykh Abubakar Gummi. He carried out his condemnations with utmost tact and caution and in a very systematic manner too. Shaykh Gummi first began by giving some words of Nasiha Ga Musulmi (advice to Muslims) against what he termed the 'inherent evils' associated with the teachings of some 'traditionalist Malamai.' He later picked the Tariqas one after the other for an assessment and exposure. The teachings of Shaykh Abubakar Gummi against the Sufi Brotherhoods led to the rise of some strong resentment against the Sufi doctrines, which later culminated in the emergence of Izala organization.<sup>103</sup>

The Izala movement was officially launched in 1978 in Jos, Plateau State and it later came to Kano in the same year. It is an Islamic movement which believes in one God and his messenger Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H) like other various Islamic movements. The Izala started to have an influence in Kano as a result of the preaching of Shaykh Isma'ila Idris who was one of the prominent leaders of the group and also the founders of Izala movement as well as the leader of the Jos Izala branches. Before the emergence of the Izala group in Kano, already there were some Islamic groups in existence, notably Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah. There were also some groups who were neither Qadiriyyah nor Tijjaniyyah, and some from those groups were those people who accepted the ideas of Izala when it was first introduced to Kano.

The Izala movement having established its influence in Kano started mobilizing their followers and preaching the ideas of the organization by criticizing some ideas of other Islamic movements, particularly Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah. The activity of the Izala in the early 1978s brought serious upheavals and division among the Muslim Ummah in Kano State. It was reported that, some of those preachers included the following, Malam Lawan Abubakar, who was the former secretary of Ulamah of the Izala in Kano, Malam Kawu Iliya and Malam Abdullahi Ishaq Garangamawa. The preaching started in Kano Metropolis at Brigade Quarters in the residence of a former driver and one of the first Ahlul-Sunnah in his time known as Kawu Ilyasu, who died in 2006.<sup>104</sup>

The Izala used some few places in the city and outside the city called ‘Majlis’ which served as schools and mosques, before the movement started to build its own mosques. Those places continued to serve as their schools and mosques up to 1990. After the tension relegated in 1991-1992 Izalah started to build mosques for prayers and for imparting knowledge to their students in the Islamiyyah schools attached to their mosques.<sup>105</sup> Some of the centers and schools identified with the propagation of Izala Islamic ideas were established by Sheikh Abdullahi Pakistan, Sheikh bn. Usman, Sheikh Ja’afar Mahmud Adam. The children and the wives of the members were taught Islamic education in the schools.<sup>106</sup>

The grounds, on which the followers of Izala regarded it as Haram (unlawful), for any follower of a Sufi order to lead the other Muslims in congregational prayers, were the same with those on which Shaykh Abubakar Gummi made an earlier attempt to invalidate the doctrines of Sufism in the light of Sharia. The reasons advanced by the Izala organization to back up its claims, were largely based on the assumption that, since Sufism is an ‘alien’ philosophy to Islam, and the Tariqas that emerged out of it constituted an ‘established’ form of ‘deviation’ from the laws of Shari’a, then, a follower of any Sufi Brotherhood (Dan Darika) is a ‘Kafir’ (unbeliever).<sup>107</sup>

With the formation of a circle of younger Izala leaders in Kano, who were perceived as partially independent from the national leadership of the movement, was the fruit of their attempt to relatively soften the believes that had been maintained by the traditional leadership of Izala since its foundation in 1978, that all the followers of the Tijjaniyyah and the Qadiriyyah were “kafir” (unbelievers). The issue of contestation is the legitimacy of praying behind an Imam affiliated to a Sufi order, which early position considered by the traditional Izala was that this action was prohibited, due to their understanding of the status of a Sufi as that of a ‘kafir’ (unbeliever), the young Kano leaders were open to consider the followers of the Sufi orders as mere mubtadi (innovators), and therefore to allow praying behind them though only under certain circumstances, like the unavailability of the Izala Imams to pray behind.<sup>108</sup>

The Jama’atu Tajdidul Islamy in Kano

Jama’atu Tajdidul Islamy (Society for Renewal of Islam) or simply abbreviated as JTI is an Islamic group that emerged in Northern Nigeria during the mid-1990s. This group and its main figure Abubakar Mujahid broke away from Ibraheem Zakzaky and his Shi’ism project. Shaykh Mujahid himself taught at Ahmadu Bello University of Zaria. The group seems to have its leading personalities in Zaria, Kaduna, and Kano. The group played a crucial role in framing the Shari’a project. Shaykh Mujahid being close to Zakzaky was deeply influenced by the latter.

He travelled to Iran after the revolution of 1979. The fact that Zakzaky “converted” to Shi’ite doctrine resulted in a split from Zakzaky, as well as from some former followers. The lecture given by Zakzaky on January 7th, 1994, led to the division of the group with nine people including Shaykh Mujahid splitting from Zakzaky. The bone of contention in this lecture was Zakzaky’s open declaration of his adoption of the Shi’ite doctrine. Consequently, those people formed JTI and declared its own da’awa based on the Qur’an and within Sunni Islam.<sup>109</sup>

The idea of founding the JTI took shape in January 1995. The Muslim Brotherhood of Egypt was used extensively as a model. Shaykh Mujahid was the Director General and Ustaz Amin was his deputy. The goals of JTI can be summarized in six points: having an individual Muslim obeying God; creating a Muslim house on the basis of Islamic education; development of an Islamic Society; development of an Islamic State on the basis of the Qur’an and Sunna; making the Islamic revival a reality; and re-establishment of the Islamic Caliphate. The JTI actively supported only the Ulama who accepted their doctrines and beliefs and established schools dealing with Islamic thought and Arabic language, and preaches in villages in the mosques and open places.<sup>110</sup>

In Kano, Malam Ahmad Sha’aibu gathered followers and explained to them the reason behind the broke away from Zakzaky and the formation of the new movement under the leadership of Malam Abubakar Mujahid, at their state headquarters at Indabawa quarters, in the city of Kano. The Kano headquarters of Zakzaky located at Kofar Dan agundi quarters was transformed to Attajdid Newspaper. Another property of Islamic movement which used to serve as an Islamic center and school called Fudiyya was seized and transformed, and the name was changed to Usmaniyya schools. The JTI continued propagating its ideas through da'awa activities to which it tends to invite all Muslims without excluding any specific group.<sup>111</sup>

The new organizations major forces to contend with at the time were perhaps the two established Islamic Movements of the Qadiriyyah and the Tijjaniyyah. Because of this reason, the teaching and ideas of most of the new organizations appeared to be all out to discredit and in some cases destroy the doctrines and proponents of the traditional movements. In this regards, the doctrines of the two movements came under severe criticism, and the attacks were coming from within and outside. The traditional inter and intra Tariqa crises now shifted to that of confrontation between the Qadiriyyah and the Jijjaniyyah on the other hand, and the rest of the new movements on the other.<sup>112</sup>

Generally speaking, the new organizations completely hold a different view, from the Sufi brotherhood movements in various ways. While the main objectives of all the Sufi orders are primarily aimed towards the 'indoctrinating' of their followers with their sectarian doctrines and ideas, the new religious organizations on the other hand, appeared to be very liberal, accommodating and broader in outlook. Another noticeable feature of the new organizations is that, while the brotherhoods are largely mystical in their individual and collective approach to religious and worldly issues, they, on the contrary, proved to be very practical and straightforward. In other words, one could say that, the main difference between the 'traditional' movements and the 'new' organizations was that, while the former seemed to be more interested in the propagation of their peculiar beliefs and the search for new disciples from among the Muslim communities, the latter appeared to be more concerned in teaching the Muslims about the basic principles of their faith. They also show much concern in expanding the frontiers of Islam. More over their organizational structures are more formal and defined.<sup>113</sup>

As mentioned above, the emergence of religious organizations in Kano changed the socio-religious setting, because the scholars during the period between 1970 and 1991 struggle for sacred space in Kano. The Izala organization as a result of its belief that it was unlawful to pray behind the dan tariqa, they started to build mosques in Kano in 1992. The struggle to establish Friday mosque in Kano metropolis by new organization indirectly influenced the spread of Friday mosques in the city of Kano, because the second Friday mosque was built in 1992 at Koki by the Tijjaniyyah, when the Izala started to build mosques in Kano Metropolis (1991-1992). With this development, the Sufi brotherhood movements the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah, on one hand and the new organizations on the other hand, struggle to establish Friday mosques in Kano city to show their influence and identity.

2.5 The Essential Factors Responsible for the Development and Spread of Friday Prayer Mosques in Kano City

Historically, since independence and more specifically from the first half of the 1960s, socio-economic, religious and political factors have inspired the Ulama (scholars) to play a more prominent and powerful role in the establishment, development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in Kano in general and Kano city in particular. Their roles have been characterized primarily by their attempts to win more members to their site. This development had some positive and negative impact on the Muslim community.

2.5.1 Political Factor

There were numerous clashes between Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah in the North during the 1940s, for example. Notably, the British turned a blind eye to the Masu Sarauta's use of Native Authority police and resources to arrest Tijjaniyyah leaders and destroy Tijjaniyyah mosques. The conflict between the Tijjaniyyah and the Qadiriyyah came to a head with the formation of the overtly pro-Tijjaniyyah Kano Peoples Party in 1963. Further, the period of Northern Peoples' Congress rule under the Sardauna Sokoto during the late 1950s and early 1960s was to see a continued attempt to consolidate the authority of the Masu Sarauta via the use of religious legitimacy built around the image of the Qadiriyyah and the Sokoto Caliphate.<sup>114</sup>

The politicians and former military government functionaries also engaged in mosque building venture in Kano and other parts of Northern Nigeria. Historically, the Premier of Northern region, Sir Ahmadu Bello Sardauna of Sokoto, was one of the earliest politicians who built mosque for public use. He built Sultan Bello mosque in Kaduna where he and his ministers used to pray.<sup>115</sup> In the city of Kano, the military and civilian governors provided land for the establishment of Friday mosques.

2.5.2 Religio-Economic Factor

The ideas found in the writings of earlier scholars like Ibn Taimiyya and Muhammad bn Abdulwahab who were very critical of Sufism, became well understood and accepted in the early 1950s, by some of the local scholars. On the other hand, important books of Sufism which explain the doctrines of the Qadiriyyah and the Tijjaniyyah, such as Gunyatul Dalibin, Jawahirul

Ma'ani, and Yaqutatul Farida, were equally competing with the others. At this point, some questions were raised and commentaries made on the actual status of Tariqa in Islam. Although people appeared divided for and against these new ideas which mainly came from the Arab world and Northern Africa, they did actually make some impact on the Muslim population in Northern Nigeria.<sup>116</sup>

The Arab world was by this period also experiencing some new development in its history characterized by the emergence of various religious movements such as the Islamic Brotherhood in Egypt, the renewal of support for the Mahdiyya (a movement founded by Shaykh Muhammad Ahmad) in the Sudan, and more fundamentally, the waves of the Wahabiyya movement in Sa'udi Arabia. On the other hand, the number of pilgrims and merchant scholars coming in and out of Kano increased considerably. The implication of this development was that the Ulama of Kano came face to face with this turbulent history of the Middle East and North Africa. As a result of this development, many of the Ulama in Kano were influenced by the ideas they came into contact with.<sup>117</sup>

Also, International Islamic organizations played pivotal role in providing fund for the purchase of land and construction of mosques in both rural and urban areas of Kano. Al-Muntada Islamic Trust, a London based non-governmental organization, has been at the forefront of sponsoring mosque building and Salafi (Izala) activities in Kano. In recent time, al-Furqan Islamic organization also emerged on the religious landscape of Kano and built one of the biggest and most decorated mosques in Kano with splendid Middle Eastern architecture. This mosque is called al-Furqan mosque and is located in Nassarawa Government Reserved Area (GRA) with Dr Bashir Umar as its Imam. The location of this mosque in itself explains the huge amount of money spent in the acquisition of land upon which it was constructed. There is also Kuwaiti Ministry of Religious Endowment that built mosques in Kano and their prominent project was the building of Da'wa Mosque in collaboration with Saudi religious body, Dar al-Iftar, managed by Shaykh Ben Baz. This mosque is located in Suleiman Crescent and controlled by the leader of Da'wa Group Shaykh Aminuddeen Abubakar. Thus, the foreign donation to the mosque building contributed to the constant rise in the number of mosques in Kano which in turn intensified the competition and contestation for the control of religious spaces.<sup>118</sup>

Another important factor responsible for the spread of mosques in Kano was the huge investment in mosque building by wealthy and businessmen among whom are Shaykh Isyaka Rabi'u, Alhaji Sanusi Dantata, Alhaji Sani Marshal, Alhaji Sani Buhari Daura, and many others. They built mosques perhaps to get influence in their society and continuous blessing and prosperity in their businesses. Most of the mosques built by this class of merchants were Friday mosques and handed over to the community. However, the appointment of Imam in such mosques created conflict between followers of Izala and Sufi orders. Each group would try to impose its Imam so that they could control the religious space.<sup>119</sup>

2.5.3 Social Factor

Historically, Kano witnessed rural-urban migration especially from late 1960s, as a result of the Nigerian development plan of 1974. This development has led to the increase in the population. With the population growth, it became clear that a single Friday mosque for the entire Kano area was grossly inadequate to accommodate the needs of numerous worshippers particularly those coming from the eastern part of the city. Thus, after Fatwa was sought and given by the Ulama, Emir Ado Bayero gave an approval for donation to be demanded from individuals and organizations aimed at the construction of Waje (outskirts) mosque. The decisive role played by the Emirate leadership made the endeavor to record a huge success because Muslims from the city and metropolis donated generously to this important course. In order to portray the all encompassing nature of the mosque as belonging to all and sundry and to deemphasize sectarian differences, the Emirate council organized a well attended foundation laying ceremony and Muslims from various leanings graced the occasion. To maintain the emirate hold over this new mosque, the Emir appointed a pious and well respected Shehu Waziri Gidado as its Imam in 1969.<sup>120</sup>

With this development, outside Kano city, there were five main Friday Mosques, in the Fagge and Sabon Gari quarters. The first one was the Yoruba Mosque located at 39, Church Road, Sabon Gari which was built by the Yoruba community between 1919 and 1920. The mosque served as a center of unity for the Muslim Yoruba of Kano with the exception of those who profess the Ahmadiyyah faith among them. There was also another Mosque in Sabon Gari that caters for all other ethnic groups, Yoruba, Nupe, Igala, and Ebira. Other mosques included the Kurna Asabe Mosque (built by a Kano business man, Alhaji Sani Marshall) in 1973, the Murtala Muhammad Mosque in 1976, the Bayero University Mosque (built through communal contribution) in 1987, and the other one behind the Federal Government College, along Zaria Road.<sup>121</sup>

In the history of Nigeria, no settlement can boast of readily available and accurate population figures due to certain circumstances and Kano is no exception. As a result one has to rely on population estimates from European travellers' accounts such as Clapperton (1824), Henry Barth (1857), Staudinger (1885) and Montev (1891). Kano city was thought to have had a population of about 75,000 inhabitants or more in the 16th century. It is also estimated to be between 30,000 to 40,000 inhabitants in 1824. Similarly, when Barth came to Kano in 1857, he estimated the population at 30,000.<sup>122</sup> According to the 1991 and 2006 census figures, Kano city was said to have had a population of at least 1.2 million inhabitants.<sup>123</sup> The demography of Kano city becomes healthy for scholars to justify the need of more Friday mosques, because Friday prayer is starting with twelve people and above.

According to some interviewees<sup>124</sup>, the increase of Friday mosques in Kano city during this period was as a result of the insecurity bedeviling Northern Nigeria. The people of Kano troops to the Kano central mosque every Friday to perform their prayer. This was meant to benefit socially and economically, because it was only on Friday that many people congregate and interact with their old friends particularly the aged ‘ones. After the prayer people would sell and buy products in the mosque. Nevertheless, the attacks carried out by Boko Haram in Kano around 2012 led to the ban on “achaba” business in the state. Having realized that, the Boko Haram targeted the gathering places. It became necessary to approve the establishment of more Friday mosques in Kano. In 2014 Kano central mosque was also attacked. As a result of these developments; the Emir of Kano approved the upgrading of Sheshe five-daily-prayer mosque in Kano city into Friday mosque, in order to reduce the number of people attending the prayer at Kano central mosque.

It was important to note that, despite the fact that many five daily prayer mosques were transformed into Friday mosques in Kano. The historical hijrah mosques established in the 19th century approved by Shaikh Usman Dan Fodio and Shaikh Abdullahi ibn Fodio's effort on qibla (direction) of the mosques were not transformed into Friday mosques. These hijrah mosques of Yolawa, Wudilawa, Galadanci, Jalli and Dambazau were not upgraded into Friday mosques, due to some reasons. Firstly, the hijrah mosques were related directly with the Jihad and traditional leaders. For instance, the Yolawa mosque was related to Madakin Kano, Wudilawa mosque to Makaman Kano, Galadanci mosque to Galadiman Kano, Jalli (Yakasai) mosque to Jakadan Kano and Dambazau mosque to Sarkin Bai of Kano.<sup>125</sup> Secondly, these mosques were under the leadership of the Emir of Kano, and that some of the Imams of the Hijra mosques were appointed by the Emir. According to the Imam of Jalli Mosque, the first Imam that was appointed by the Emir in the mosque was Alkalin Kano Dikko during the reign of Sarki Muhammadu Bello (1883-1893).<sup>126</sup> Thirdly, Hijra mosques were very close to the Kano central mosque.<sup>127</sup> The last reason appears to be more controversial, because one might argue that, the Sheshe five daily mosque that was also very close to Kano central mosque was upgraded to Friday mosque in 2016.

2.6 Conclusion

The Wangarawa scholars who came from Mali were believed to be responsible for the introduction and spread of Islam in Kano during the fourteenth century. With the introduction of Islam in Kano in 1359, and having realized the importance of Friday prayer, one Friday prayer mosque was established for the whole of Kano in order to avoid the fragmentation of the Muslim community. The importance and functions of the mosque led scholars to struggle for the sacred space in Kano. The Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah Sufi brotherhoods attempted to explain some of the religious practices and rites, this development brought out some changes in the Tariqa movement in Kano. The emergence of new organizations has led to the re-emergence of the question of “who is the Muslim and who is not”. This dispute became so serious during the twentieth century among the adherents. Many struggled to come up with a reason to separate mosques as well as accusing non-believers on each other. Since then, the scholars have continued to struggle for influence and identity in Kano in general and Kano city in particular. As mentioned above, factors such as political, socio-religious and economic were responsible for the development and spread of Friday mosques in Kano city.

CHAPTER THREE

THE ESTABLISHMENT AND DEVELOPMENT OF FRIDAY PRAYER MOSQUES IN KANO CITY, 1992-2012

3.1 INTRODUCTION

Since the introduction of Islam and establishment of a Friday prayer mosque in Kano around 1359, there was only one Friday Mosque for the people of Kano city up to 1991. This chapter discusses the major factors that were responsible for the establishment and development of Friday mosques in Kano city from 1992-2012. It highlighted the extent to which this development still affects the geographical location and historical background of the people that inhabit the area under study. Also, it examines the methods followed in establishing Friday mosques in the city of Kano during the period under study. The brief history of the Imams (Islamic scholars) and their contributions towards the development of Islamic education particularly in Kano city are also highlighted.

In the year 1992, Koki Mosque, located in the northern part of the city was upgraded to Friday mosque. Dala Mosque, located in the western part of the city, was also recognized as Friday mosque in 2011. In another direction, another Friday mosque, Ashabul Khafi, was established in 2012. People from the Western and Southern parts of the city begin to observe their prayers there. One interesting point here was that, each one of the mosques under discussion directly belonged to a different religious groups. This will therefore help us to have a clear understanding of the ideological differences of the scholars behind the major groups in Kano (Qadiriyyah, Tijjaniyah and Izala groups).

3.2 KOKI FRIDAY MOSQUE 1992

Koki Friday Mosque is located at Koki quarters along Sarari road. This area shares boundaries with Abbatuwa and Fagge quarters on the east, Sarari quarters on the west, Kofar Mazugal, Daganda and Daurawa quarters on the north, and Bakin Zuwo, Ganari, Zangon Barebari as well as ‘Yan Awaki quarters on the south.<sup>128</sup> The Hausa people that inhabited the area are mostly businessmen. The area was blessed with learned scholars like Malam Abdullah Uba Fantiya, Malam Sha’aibu Dan Ciyako, Malam Gwani Dan Zarga, and Malam Inuwa Imam of Zawiyya, Malam Saddiku Inuwa Imam of Koki mosque, and Malam Muhammadu Bature Inuwa to mention but a few.

Historically, the origin and establishment of Koki ward was derived from two accounts, the name Koki originated from a name of a woman from Zaitawa, who settled in the area prior to the advent of the colonialists. She decided to build a house near the Chediya and then began her commercial activities with traders from neighboring areas. As time went by, this commercial activity attracted the attention of the people in the city. And, they subsequently began to move and even settle in the area to live together with Koki. The first man to settle in the area was called Dan Sarki Mai Taba. He built a house next to Koki’s house. During the annual Durbar (sallah) festival, Koki, together with the people in the area, would gather outside to praise the passing emir and his entourage on their way to Fanisau quarters. This was during the reign of, the late Sarkin Kano Maje Karofi (1855-83). Since then, people began to call the area Koki, and many more people moved to establish their settlements in the area.<sup>129</sup>

Another tradition suggested that, the Koki ward derived its name from a tree called Kokiya that scattered all over the place. During the reign of Sarki Abdullahi Maje Karofi (1855-83), the emir's place was overcrowded. Because of this, the emir said to the people that, they should move to the area (Koki), because Koki area was unoccupied and was a bush. When people arrived at the place, they discovered that Kokiya trees were all over the area. They cut-up the Kokiya trees and built houses. As a result of this, more people gradually continued to arrive at the place to settle and began to call the area Koki from the name of the tree Kokiya.<sup>130</sup> It was argued that, the name of Koki ward was not likely to have derived its name from Kokiya, because something was missed from the name. As a result of this, it is likely that Koki ward derived its name from a woman called Koki.

The Establishment and Development of the Koki Friday Mosque

The land on which this mosque is built was acquired from Sarki Abbas (1903-1919). It was given to a renowned billionaire, Alhaji Alhassan Dantata. He built an exceptional five-daily-prayer mosque there. In 1990, his family members wanted to expand and convert it into a Friday mosque. They approached the emirate and requested for a permission to convert the mosque. They were directed by the late Emir Alhaji (Dr.) Ado Bayero to follow the tradition, i.e. to obtain the consent of the residents of Sarari and Koki wards. Upon obtaining the consent, which was welcomed with massive celebration from the residents, the construction work began in the same year. Alhaji Sanusi Dantata, Alhaji Aminu Dantata and their elder sister later donated their warehouses to be included as part of the premises of the new mosque.<sup>131</sup>

According to my informant, people have been using this mosque as a five-daily-prayer mosque for over sixty-seven years. Malam Habubakar Mahim Kalarawi was appointed as the first Imam of the five daily prayers.<sup>132</sup> The movements and migrations of the people within and outside Kano led to population increase in the area. Due to distance however, people found it difficult to attend the Friday prayer at the Kano Central Mosque. Having realized this difficulty and coupled with the population increase, they deemed it right to transform the mosque into a Friday mosque. In 1992, having followed the due process, they were allowed to start the Friday prayer in the mosque, and it thus, became the second (Juma'at mosque) in Kano city. The mosque was opened by the late Emir of Kano, Alhaji Ado Bayero, and it was named Alhaji Alhassan Dantata Friday Mosque.<sup>133</sup> It was decided to call the mosque as (Koki mosque), because it was located at Koki.

The Administration and Management of the Mosque

According to the Imam of the mosque, the mosque was established and maintained by Alhaji Alhassan Dantata. After the mosque was expanded by his family members and transformed into Friday mosque, Alhaji Sanusi Dantata and Alhaji Aminu Dantata took over the maintenance of the mosque. Police officers patrol the area every day. Some of the officers would come in the morning and some in the night, they usually park there car around the mosque. There are some organizations that use to come every Friday like the Red Cross and Scout. They, too, offer helps in supervising and assisting people who come to pray.<sup>134</sup>

The Imams and Mu'azzins of the Mosque

After the mosque was transformed into Friday mosque and having successfully passed the screening of the Shura Committee (Councils of Ulama of Kano), under the supervision of the Emirate Council Malam Saddiku son of Malam Inuwa Imam of Zawiya, was appointed to lead the Friday prayer, and Malam Aliyu Salihu Turaki was appointed as his Na'ibi (deputy). When the first Imam Malam Saddiku died, his Na'ibi Malam Aliyu Salihu Turaki, was appointed as the new Imam. The position of Na'ibi became vacant, as a result of which two deputies were appointed. Malam Muhammadu Bature Inuwa was appointed as the first Na'ibi and also Malam Nura Muhammad appointed to be the second deputy in the mosque. The two Mu'azzin<sup>135</sup> were appointed in the mosque, Malam Aminu Muhammad as the chief Muazzin and Malam Fadalu Koki as his deputy.<sup>136</sup>

The Brief History of the Chief Imam of the Mosque

Malam Aliyu Salihu Turaki was born in 1972 at Koki, in Kano State. He began his education with Qur'anic studies at a tsangaya in Kano, (one of the many traditional Qur'anic schools in Northern Nigeria). He memorized the entire Holy Qur'an at a tender age. He studied Akhleri, Ishmawiy to mention but a few, with Malam Umaru Na Bebeji, Malam Idris (also known as Malam Babba). His mother was one of his teachers. He traveled to many places in search of Islamic knowledge. He also attended the modern type of Islamic schools (popularly called Islamiyya) before proceeding to Primary School. Having finished, he then proceeded to Government Secondary School Aliya, Kano.<sup>137</sup>

The Contributions of the Mosque

It is very important to note that, the mosque has been contributing greatly towards educating the Muslim Ummah since its inception to date. Although the mosque belongs to the Tijjaniyah brotherhood, during the Friday prayer even those who have different beliefs, ideas and understanding perform their prayer in the mosque. This is as a result of the mutual understanding between the Tijjaniyah members in the area and other followers.<sup>138</sup> This became possible because of the nature of the sermon in the mosque.

The mosque had length of eighty five (85) by eighty five (85) estimated by foot, and sixteen (16) lines, and each line accommodate at least fifty (50) people. As a result of this, the mosque had a capacity to accommodate at least eight hundred (800) people inside the mosque excluding those that pray at the compound. It could not be possible to estimate the number of people that pray in the mosque every Friday. Because apart from those that pray in the mosque regularly, on the east there is a butchers market (Abbatuwa), some of them pray in the mosque. It is also located at the densely populated areas of Sarari, Kofar Mazugal, Bakin Zuwo and 'Yan Awaki'.<sup>139</sup>

The Sermon in the Mosque

The sermons delivered by the Imams are always based on the calling of the Muslims to fear Allah and follow the teachings of Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H), emphasizing on the importance of prayer, unity of Muslims, brotherhoods, relationship, and neighborhood and also to be truthful and sincere in their daily activities.<sup>140</sup>

<sup>140</sup> Interviewed with, Malam Aliyu Salihu Turaki, on 10/10/2019 and Malam Baballiya Ibrahim, 40 years, Businessman, at the mosques premises in Koki, on 11/10/2019

The prayer in the mosque starts at 02:00 pm, every Friday but due to some circumstances, five minutes will be added and it would not exceed 02:05 pm. The Imam would climb the Minbar at exactly 01:30 pm, and then Ladan would call the prayer. The Imam would start the sermon in Arabic language that would last for ten to twelve minutes and translate it to indigenous language (Hausa), for twenty to eighteen minutes, and prayer start at 02:00 pm. According to him, the wisdom behind the translating the sermon in Hausa was that, many people do not understand Arabic language, so it became necessary to translate the sermon to pass the information.

The Socio-Education Activities in the Mosque

The mosque served as a center for learning because people (children and adults) have been taught in the mosque. The educational activities carried out in the mosque include, the session carried out between Magrib (sunshine) and Isha'I (night) prayers by the Imam of the mosque, and he would teach his students the Holy Qur'an in the mosque after which they would recite the daily Tijjaniyah wazifa (litany).<sup>141</sup> Some of the Islamic books taught in the evening at the mosque include: Luggatul Arabia (Arabic language), Hadith, and fiqh. There are other occasional activities carried out in the mosque. These include: special lectures for the purpose of enlightening Muslims during the month of Ramadan (fasting period) and in the month of Rabi'ul Awwal (Islamic month). Others include marriage contract and naming ceremony.<sup>142</sup>

<sup>141</sup> Wazifa is especially practiced by Tijaniyya adherents in Nigeria. It consists of a daily remembrance of Allah through reciting “la ilaha illa Allah” (there is not God but Allah), 100 times, ṣalat al-Fatiḥ (a special Tijani praise to the prophet Muhammad pbuh), and istighfar (seeking forgiveness from Allah) 100 times;

3.3 DALA FRIDAY MOSQUE 2011

Dala Friday Mosque is located near the historic monument of Dala Hill in the western part of Kano city. This area is bounded by Kabawa quarters on the south, Kantudu and Makafi quarters on the north, Makwalla and Shirawa quarters on the east, and in the west by Gworen Dutse, Madigawa, and Rijiya Biyu quarters.<sup>143</sup> The area is inhabited by Hausa and Fulani people, and their main occupation is trade, though some of them prefer blacksmith work. Dala is blessed with many Islamic scholars. These include Malam Husaini Sadauki, Malam Sani Dala, Malam Usman Abubakar, Malam Dan-Babace Habibu, Malam Abba Na Ta'ala and Malam Musdafal Bakari Malam Makwarari to mention but a few.<sup>144</sup> The name of this area is derived from the first settler in Dala, as it was reported in the Kano Chronicle. He came to this land, and built a house on the Dala Hill. There he lived with his family. Their arrival to Kano brought about not only some innovations in the entire religious activities in the area but also in the socio-political aspects of the people in Kano.<sup>145</sup>

The Establishment and Development of the Dala Friday Mosque

The Dala Friday Mosque was built on a land purchased by Alhaji Ali Sabon Kudi popularly -known as Alhaji Ali Maiwake in 1983. In the first place, he built it as a Friday prayer mosque to ease off the long journey people had to take to attend Friday prayer at the Kano central mosque. Later on, the mosque was opened as a five-daily-prayer mosque.<sup>146</sup> As there was another Friday mosque belonging to Sheikh Isyaka Rabi'u (of Tijjaniyah) in Goron Dutse) in the western part of this mosque, he decided to hand it over to Shaykh Nasiru Kabara (head of the Qadiriyyah). Nasiru Kabara appointed an Imam that would lead the prayers and supervise the activities in the mosque. Qadiriyyah adherents<sup>147</sup> in the area began to carry out their Islamic activities in the mosque.<sup>148</sup>

However, the people responsible for the mosque seemed to have failed due to some reasons. Firstly, some people are of the opinion that, it was largely because the philanthropist, Alhaji Ali Maiwake, who built the mosque, was having some economic setback which made him unable to continue taking the responsibility of the mosque.<sup>149</sup> Secondly, it was as a result of the negligence of the Imams that was assigned to lead the prayer in the mosque and some of the Qadirawa in the area.<sup>150</sup> The first reason appears to be more convincing because, in Kano city, any person who built a mosque will be the one to take care of it, like, Koki, Alkali Buhari Daura, Sharif Bala Friday mosques, but under some circumstances one can hand it over to a particular organization or group in the community. Nevertheless, most of the mosques under community care tend to lack proper maintenance, while those under individual or organizational care tend to be well maintained.

The Dala Mosque was established for the observance of prayers, has turned into something else. It became a center for all sorts of criminal activities in the area, a gathering place for thugs, for example. They would come with dogs during the day or night, and sometimes even sleep there. They used the mosque as a hideout, whenever they attacked people. Having received complaints from the community members, Alhaji Ali decided to close the mosque in order to stop the anti-social acts. The mosque remained locked for some years before a group of youths in the area decided to restore the religious activities in the mosque.<sup>151</sup>

In 1988, the Muslim Brothers in the area whose desire to propagate and promote Islam decided to meet Alhaji Ali Mai Wake because they had the beliefs that, if the mosque was allowed to remain like that, everyone in the area would be held accountable in the day of judgment. They met with Alhaji Ali and requested to be given the responsibility of taking care of the mosque in the same year. Alhaji Ali agreed to hand them over the mosque because of his desire to see people pray there and for the mosque to serve its purpose. He gave them a carpet to be used in the mosque; they washed and cleaned the mosque and also provided microphone, repaired the wiring.<sup>152</sup> But Malam Musdafal Bakari had a contrary view that, it was Alhaji Ibrahim brother of Zannan Kano one of the members of the mosque committee, they met and the committee agreed to hand over the mosque to them.<sup>153</sup> Unfortunately, this decision would turn the mosque into a ground of insult, clash and counter clash between the Qadirawa and Muslim Brothers simply because he had handed over the responsibility of the mosque to another group.

According to Malam Mansur, after the mosque was ready for use, the Muslim Brothers decided to call the Imams to continue leading the prayer. The Imams returned and the activities continued for quite some times before they abandoned the mosque again. In the period between 1994, the Muslim Brothers decided to take full control of the mosque; because the Qadirawa followers prove indicated they could not take care of the mosque. The Qadiriyah adherents, in particular, replied, saying “how could it be possible for a woman to marry two men”, meaning the mosque in question belongs to them.<sup>154</sup>

In 1995, the conflict emerged between the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah adherents on one hand and between the Muslim Brothers and Izala groups on the other,<sup>155</sup> due to the reasons that, there was a rumor that Muslim Brothers became Shi’a members, because its national leader Shaikh Zakzaky had declared his allegiance to Iran and adopted Shi’a ideology. As a result of which the members of Muslim Brothers in the area made it clear that, they had broken away from the Muslim Brothers and they were Members of Jama’atul Tajdidul Islamy (JTI). Second, there was conflict between the members of Tariqa and Izala in Kano in general and in Kano city in particular, because of the Izala move to propagate their beliefs and ideas in the community. Fortunately Malam Mansur who was a member of the Izala group was appointed as the Imam and began to teach in (the mosque) Islamic books.<sup>156</sup> The JTI together with Izala members said that the mosque does not belong to Qadiriya adherents anymore, because of what they called their negligence.<sup>157</sup>

It is important to state here that, the struggle for ownership and control of the Dala Mosque between the Qadiriyyah Sufi order and the JTI and Izala group went on for almost six years. According to Naziru Ahmad, such conflict was not supposed to happen within the community, because such conflict even between members of the same family could be very destructive. The youths would insult and defile their elders. Brothers and sisters, and colleagues might not even greet one another.<sup>158</sup> When the conflict over the mosque persisted, the issue was taken to the local government secretariat and even to the police headquarters at Bompai. The local government secretary summoned the conflicting parties and reminded them that they were all Muslims of the same family. He emphasized on the need to be brothers' keepers. The conflict came to an end when the conflicting parties agreed to use the mosque at different time. Peace was restored in the area based on this consensus, eventhough there was no written agreement. As a result of this, the Qadiriyyah adherents, JTI and Izala adherents perform their Islamic obligations in the mosque in separate times.<sup>159</sup>

In 2011, the Qadiriyyah Sufi order in its attempt to regain its ownership and control of the mosque approached the authority to upgrade the mosque into a Friday mosque.<sup>160</sup> The Qadiriyyah took the issue to the Emir, explaining that the people of the area were having difficulties in attending Friday prayer at the Kano central mosque and Goron Dutse mosque. Because many people particularly the elderly ones, pray Salatul Juma'a at home due to distance. The Emirate Council, having agreed with these reasons, allowed the Qadiriyyah group to start the Friday prayer in the mosque.<sup>161</sup> According to Malam Mustapha Sani, JTI and Yan Izala (Izala adherents) were not involved in the process; they just saw people gathering on Friday to say the Friday prayer. Another conflict emerged. In order to maintain peace in the area, Malam Mansur quickly called his followers to order. Since then the Qadiriya was leading Friday prayer while the Izala was leading five daily prayers.<sup>162</sup> maintenance of the mosque. The mosque relied heavily on the contributions made by individuals and the members of mosque committee. Whenever there was urgent need for something in the mosque, the committee members would make their contributions to solve the financial problems or provided what the mosque needs, but because of some circumstances they seek contributions from congregate on Friday. Therefore, every Friday there would be people assigned by the mosque committee to go round with boxes in order to seek for contributions from anyone among the congregate who are willing to make his own contributions. Because of this, the mosque was on serious financial problems; its sources of income were very scanty, sometimes the money generated on Friday could not even be used to buy fuel for the generator of the mosque. Another challenge was that, the microphone used was insufficient to convey the sound every Friday prayer.<sup>163</sup>

The mosque had a borehole inside the compound as a source of water, which provides water for people to perform their ablution. It had two bathrooms and toilet in the southern part of the mosque. The mosque was using generator in case of power outage. There were committees established to look after the mosque, they would come early to clean the area before prayer start and also to offer help in assisting people who came to pray, and supervise their belongings up to the end of the prayer.<sup>164</sup>

After the mosque was transformed into Friday mosque, and having successfully passed the screening of the Shura Committee (Councils of Ulama of Kano), under the supervision of the Emirate Council Malam Abba Na Ta'ala was appointed as the chief Imam. The two (Na'ibi) deputies were appointed, Malam Musdafal Bakari Yusufu Makwarari as the first and Malam

Mujittapha as the second Na'ibi. Malam Musdafal Bakari was the first to lead the Friday prayer in the mosque in spite of his being the first Na'ibi. Because of this reason however, attention would be given to him. The three Mu'azzin<sup>165</sup> were appointed in the mosque, Malam Mustapha as the first Mu'azzin, Malam Auwal secretary son of Sani Kutama as the second and Malam Maikudi Sarki as the third deputy in the mosque.<sup>166</sup>

A brief History of one of the Imams of the Mosque

Shaykh Musdafal Bakari was born at Makwarari in the city of Kano on September 15, 1972. His father Shaykh Makwarari was a well-known person in Kano and contributed greatly towards the development of Qadiriyyah. According to him, he studied the Holy Qur'an from his father when he was young. When he grew up, his father took him to one of his friends, Shaykh Ibrahim Mai Gareji from whom he memorized the entire Qur'an. He also studied other Islamic books like Hadith, Risala, and Ishmawiy, to mention but a few.<sup>167</sup>

The Contributions of the Mosque

The Dala Mosque contributes greatly towards educating the Muslim Ummah since its inception to date. Although the mosque belongs to three religious groups (Qadiriyyah, JTI and Izala) the Qadiriyyah adherents still lead the Friday prayer. During the Friday prayer even those who have different beliefs, ideas and understanding perform their prayer in the mosque. This is as a result of the mutual understanding between the Qadiriyyah members in the area and other followers, particularly Tijjaniyyah adherents. This became possible because of the nature of the Friday sermon in the mosque.

The mosque had length of forty three (43) by twenty eight (28) estimated by foot, and eight (8) lines, and each line accommodate at least thirteen (13) people. As a result of this, the mosque had a capacity to accommodate at least one hundred and four (104) people inside the mosque excluding those that pray at the compound. It could not be possible to estimate the number of people that pray in the mosque every Friday. Because apart of those that pray in the mosque regularly, the mosque located at the densely populated areas of Dala, Kabawa, Makwalla, and Shirawa.<sup>168</sup>

The mosque in question attracts different people to pray, due to the style of the Friday sermons delivered. This is because the sermons delivered by the Imams are always based on the calling of the Muslims to fear Allah and follow the teachings of Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H), emphasizing on the importance of prayer, unity of Muslims, brotherhoods, relationship, and neighborhood and also to be truthful and sincere in their daily activities.<sup>169</sup> The Imams of the mosque adopted the tradition of rotation, in order to give room for an each Imam to make his contributions every Friday. For instance, if Malam Abba Na Ta'ala leads prayer this week, the following week would be by Malam Musdafal Bakari and followed by Malam Mujittapha. According to Malam Musdafal Bakari, he said that there was a time when Malam Salihu Sagir Takai (Kano State governor aspirant) prayed in the mosque, and encouraged him to continue with the style of his sermon because it would bring people together.<sup>170</sup>

The prayer in the mosque starts at 1:30 pm, every Friday but due to some circumstances, five minute would be added and it would not exceed 1:35 pm. The Imam would climb the

According to him, the wisdom behind the translating the sermon in Hausa was that, many people do not understand Arabic language, so it became necessary to translate to pass the information.<sup>171</sup>

The Socio-Education Activities in the Mosque

Educationally, the JTI, Qadiriyyah and Izala groups have agreed to reschedule their timetable to avoid further conflicts. The JTI used the mosque occasionally; sometimes they would come to spend the whole night praying. In the beginning of the first month of the Muslim calendar i.e Almuharram, they used to organize lectures. And also in the Ramadam period they used to organize Iftar (breaking fasting) ones in the month, where they would invited their members from near and far. Sometimes their local and state meetings were held in the mosque. The Islamiyyah section was opened and Malam Ibrahim was assigned to supervisor the activities, it went for quite sometimes before he abandoned the school.<sup>172</sup>

It is important to note that, the Qadiriyyah followers are using the mosque every Friday to recite the Mikadi (one of the Qadiriyyah books)<sup>173</sup>. The recitation comes after the Friday prayer was observed and on Tuesday, Hallara gathering. In Ramadan, other books taught include: fiqh on Thursday and Hadith on Friday.<sup>174</sup>

Also, after each Subh (sunrise) prayer Malam Usman –an Izala adherent, and the Imam that leads the five daily prayers in the mosque, would teach Hadith. Then on Thursdays and Fridays there would be special class for everyone with any Islamic book be it Qur'an, Hadith, or

It is important to note that, this place was a puddle before the mosque (Asahabul Khafi Mosque) was built there. People used to dump refuse there. In the first place, Alhaji Ali Dan Dudu showed interest in the place. Alhaji Ali wanted to build a mosque, so he approached the state government to give him the puddle area to build the Friday mosque. Also, Shaykh AbdulJabbar Nasiru Kabara requested the state government to give him the place to build the mosque. According to informants, nobody knew why Alhaji Ali Dan Dudu was not given the place in spite of the fact that he was the first person to make the request. The then State Governor of Kano, Eng. Rabi’u Musa Kwankwaso (1999-2003), handed the place over to Shaykh AbdulJabbar, in order for him to build the Friday mosque.<sup>182</sup>

Furthermore, the Ashabul Khafi Warrageem, under the leadership of Shaykh Abduljabbar Nasiru Kabara solicited for funds to build the mosque. The foundation for the mosque began earnestly through the contributions of their members and other philanthropists. The construction of the mosque was completed in 2012. On January 13, 2012 the first Friday prayer was said there. It was led by the chief Imam Shaykh Abduljabbar Nasiru Kabara, in the presence of the then Emir of Kano late Ado Bayero and the Sultan of Sokoto, Alhaji Sa’ad Abubakar III. The Sultan was purposely in Kano to meet the Emir but as his visit coincided with the Emir’s

Shaykh Aliyulkawwas Nasiru Kabara was appointed by Abduljabbar to be the Imam of the mosque and after the death of Aliyulkawwas his son Nasiru succeeded him. Malam Nasiru Aliyulkawwas Nasiru Kabara was born at Kabara ward, Kano, on October 27, 1997. His father taught him how to read the Holy Qur'an and other Islamic books when he was young. After he grew up, his father sent him to Ma'ahad Nasiru Kabara Primary, junior and senior secondary school where he obtained his secondary school certificate. He was admitted into Kano State Collages of Arts, Science and Remedial Studies (CAS, Kano) where he obtained an IJMB certificate. As of the time of this research, he is doing his degree program at Yusuf Maitama Sule University (formerly known as North West University), Kano.<sup>184</sup>

The Contribution of the Mosque

This mosque contributed in educating the people of the area. After every Friday prayer, Zikirin Qadiriyyah is performed in the mosque, as well as Qur'anic recitation.<sup>185</sup> Other books taught in the mosque include Dala'llul Khairat, Zikirin Riyadul Jannah and Mukaddimatul Azifa to mention but a few. Also, lectures are occasionally organized in the mosque by the leaders of the Ashabul Khafi Warrageem Organization (A.K.W.O.). The A.K.W.O is responsible for organizing and inviting the Imams to deliver lectures in the mosque. The lecture is based on educating and enlightening the Muslim Ummah.<sup>186</sup>

3.5 CONCLUSION

Conclusively, the chapter has discussed the factors responsible for the establishment and development of Friday mosques in Kano city. Such factors, as discussed above, include the increase in population as a result of movement and migration of people into Kano city. The Koki mosque was expanded and upgraded to Friday mosque, because of the establishment of new settlements in and around Kano city and due to difficulties people faced when performing their Friday prayer at the Kano Central Mosque. Also discussed is the struggle for ownership and control of Friday mosque like the Dala Friday Mosque between the JTI, Qadiriyyah and Izala followers, and the methods adopted by the conflicting parties to regain their influence and establish their identity in the community. It is in this regard that the biographies and contributions of the Imams responsible for the historical development in the area, particularly in relation to the establishment and development of Friday mosques, were briefly discussed for historical documentation.

CHAPTER FOUR

BOKO HARAM ATTACKS AND THE EMERGENCE OF NEW FRIDAY PRAYER

MOSQUES IN KANO CITY 2012-2016

4.1 INTRODUCTION

This chapter discusses the factors behind the development and spread of Friday mosques in Kano city, especially within the period under study (2012-2016). The Boko Haram attacks in Northern Nigeria which was targeting gathering centers, showed how a number of five-daily-prayer mosques were transformed into Friday mosques in Kano. During the period under study, four of these kinds of mosques were transformed into Friday mosques in Kano city. Another one was purposefully built as a Friday mosque. Other factors responsible for this development would be analyzed. However, in order to have a clear understanding of the phenomenon, the geographical location and historical background of the people that inhabit the areas, would also be discussed. In the process, the chapter discusses the brief history of the Imams (Scholars) responsible for the development under study, as well as their contributions towards the development of Islamic education in Kano, particularly within the Kano city. The method used in transforming or building new mosques in the areas is also discussed.

4.2 KOFAR NASARAWA FRIDAY MOSQUE 2012

Kofar Nasarawa Friday Prayer Mosque is located close to Kofar Nasarawa quarters in the north-eastern part of Kano. It is bounded by Wudilawa and Gidan Sarki quarters on the west, Ungwar Gini quarters on the east, Durumin Zungura and Yakasai quarters on the north, and in the south by Gandun Albasa quarters.<sup>187</sup> This area is dwelled by Hausa, Fulani, Kanuri, Yoruba and Nupe peoples. Business is their main occupation. It is blessed with learned scholars like:

<sup>187</sup> Fieldwork Note: was referred as the field trip carried out by the researcher to re-examine the geographical location of the area, on 06/02/2017.

Malam Barau Danbatta, Malam Ahmad Mai Doki, Malam Mansur Muhammad, and Malam Ali Ibrahim Mandawari among others. According to historical records, Kofar Nasarawa and the Nasarawa ward have a different narration, but share the same background. Tradition has it that, Kofar Nasarawa derived its name from Kofar Nasara. The Kofar Nasarawa was the gate through which Kano warriors would pass after wars as a sign of victory. In another version, Kofar Nasarawa ward was proclaimed in the reign of Sarkin Kano Abdullahi Dabo (also known as Maje Karofi) in 1866. This was during one of his Durbar festivities. He came to the area together with Sarkin Gini and directed him to build him a resting house and a five daily prayer mosque. Many people moved and settled with the Emir.<sup>188</sup>

The Establishment and Development of Kofar Nasarawa Friday Mosque

According to my informant<sup>189</sup>, before the mosque was built they were praying in front of one of their member's shop who sewed clothes since 1981. But for a very long time the place remained as a Majlis<sup>190</sup> due to some misunderstanding with the community members and the Emirate. This was because the Emirate did not welcome or even recognize the Izala group. Members of the Izala group were not allowed to build mosques in the area. Then later the land was given to the Izala members by the then military governor of Kano state, Idris Garba (1988-1992) to built mosque. They built a mosque through individual contributions, where five daily prayers were performed on daily basis, as well as teaching of Islamic books.<sup>191</sup>

However, due to some reasons, people suggested that the mosque should be transformed into a Friday mosque. Firstly, members of this mosque (mostly students of Malam Aminuddeen

Abubuakar) found it uncomfortable to say their Friday prayer at any mosque around the area. Many at times, they would either prefer to go as far as Da'awa Mosque in order to attend the Friday prayer, or other Izala Friday mosques like BUK Friday mosque, Gadon Kaya Friday Mosque, Tudun Murtala Friday Mosque, or Al-Muntada Friday Mosque. Secondly, after the terrorist attacks at Kano in 2012, which the Boko Haram took responsibility; members of the mosque suggested the need to upgrade the mosque into a Friday mosque. Thirdly, there was an attempt to upgrade another mosque which was very close to the mosque into a Friday mosque. Therefore, the Izala members hastened to transform their own first.<sup>192</sup>

It is important to note that, Izala members do not like to join a congregational prayer when it is led by a dan tariqa (Qadiriyyah or Tijjaniyah adherent). This is due to the ideological differences between the parties involved. Hence, they hastened to transform the mosque into a Friday mosque. This was done on January 6, 2012. They did not however follow the usual procedures required for such action. Reportedly, they refused to follow the formalities because they knew that, the Emirate Council would not allow them to transform this mosque into a Friday mosque. Therefore, the Emirate Council did not accept or even recognize the Izala and its activities in Kano. The sudden rush to start the Friday prayer in the mosque was due to a rumor that the mosque near the Izala mosque, which was old and belonged to Yan Tariqa was about to be transformed into a Friday mosque. And, they knew that if Yan Tariqa started saying the Friday prayer in their mosque, they (the Izala) would not even think of transforming their mosque into Friday mosque. Moreover, Yan Tariqa has a mutual understanding with the Emirates Council, which was why they never have difficulties in establishing Friday mosques in and around Kano.<sup>193</sup>

Having started the Friday prayer, the Emirate Council summoned the Imam and some committee members, and ordered them to stop because they did not follow the due procedures. The Izala members, however, refused to stop based on reasons that prayers had already started alongside other Islamic teaching activities. Also, they said even if they followed the due process, the Emirate Council would not allow them to upgrade the mosque.<sup>194</sup> Police officers were sent to lock the mosque in order to prevent the Izala members from performing prayers in the mosque. The Commissioner of Police summoned the Imams and the Committee members of the mosque, telling them that the transformation of the mosque might lead to religious conflict in the area, because the Izala ideology differs with that of the community members. The Committee members, however, assured the commissioner that this would not happen from their part because of the understanding they have with the community members. The mosque remained closed until when the case was taken to court. It was re-opened later as ordered by the court, and since then prayers continued in the mosque uninterrupted.<sup>195</sup>

The Administration and Management of the Mosque

Alhaji Gazali Yunusa Sarina, the mosque committee members, as well as individuals contributed generously to the building of the mosque. And also later contributions were made by individual to build school upstairs. The mosque relied heavily on the contributions made by an individuals and members of the mosque committee. Whenever there was urgent need of something, the mosque committee members would contribute and the Imam would make an announcement on Friday, for people to contribute in order to solve the financial problems or provide what the mosque needs. Another source of funds for the mosque was the weekly contributions made during the congregational prayers. Every Friday, there are people assigned by the mosque committee to go round with boxes to seek for contributions from anyone among the congregants who are willing to make his own contributions. Because of this, the mosque committee was thinking on other ways to keep maintaining and to expand the mosque, in order to accommodate the large number of people that converge to pray every Friday.<sup>196</sup>

The mosque had a borehole at the back near an Islamiyyah School donated in memory of the late Hajiya Hauwa'u Muhammad Gwarzo, which provides water for people to perform ablution. The mosque had two bathrooms and toilets place opposite the Islamiyyah School. The mosque uses a generator in case of power failure. There are committees responsible for securing the mosque. The committee of Majalisi was headed by Malam Shu'aibu Abdullahi and Malam Abdul'aziz as deputy, Malam Sani Ahmad secretary and Malam Alhaji Husaini Mai Takalmi as treasurer. The mosque have Yan Agaji of JIBWIS (Jama'atu Izaltau Bid'a Wa Ikamatus Sunnah) with the office attached to the mosque, they would come early to clean the area before prayer start and also to offer help by assisting people who come to pray, and supervise their belongings up to the end of the prayer.<sup>197</sup>

The Imams and Mu'azzins in the Mosque

After the mosque was transformed into Friday mosque, the Imam of the five daily prayers Malam Muhammad Sani Ashir was appointed as the chief. The two (Na'ibi) deputies were appointed, Dr. Anas Abbas Ibrahim as the first and Malam Ahmad Abbas as the second Na'ibi. The three Mu'azzin<sup>198</sup> were appointed in the mosque, Malam Abubakar as the first Mu'azzin, Malam Alhaji Husaini Mai Takalmi Auwal as the second and Malam Ishaq as the third deputy in the mosque.<sup>199</sup>

A brief History of the Chief Imam of the Mosque

Malam Muhammad Sani Ashir was appointed as the Chief Imam of the mosque. He was born in Hadejia Local Government, (presently in Jigawa State) on May 2, 1962. He studied the Holy Qur'an. He was first taught by his father before travelling to many places seeking for knowledge. These places included Borno where he learned the memorization of the Holy Qur'an. From Borno, he moved to Kano and attended the School for Higher Islamic Studies Shahuci (Aliya) where he obtained a secondary certificate. He got admission into the Kano State College of Arts, Science and Remedial Studies (CAS, Kano). He later got a scholarship to study at Madina University, where he obtained his degree certificate. He later did his Master at Sudan University. Presently, Malam Muhammad Sani Ashir is doing his Ph.D in the same University. He is a lecturer at Bayero University, Kano, in the Department of Islamic Studies and Shariah.<sup>200</sup>

The Contributions of the Mosque

The mosque has been contributing greatly towards educating the Muslim Ummah from its inception to date. Although the mosque belongs to the Izala group, during the Friday prayer even those who have different beliefs, ideas and understanding perform their prayer in the mosque. This is as a result of the understanding between the Izala members in the area and the people in the area. This became possible because of the nature of the sermon in the mosque.<sup>201</sup>

The mosque had length of fifty nine (59) by twenty two (22) estimated by foot, and five (5) lines, and some of the lines accommodate at least thirty two (32) and the rows accommodate at least twenty (20) or eighteen people. As a result of this, it can be very difficult to estimate the number of people that pray inside the mosque, but it had a capacity to accommodate at least seventy (70) people, excluding those that pray along road side. It could not be possible to estimate the numbers of people that pray in the mosque every Friday. This is because apart from those that pray in the mosque regularly, there were other Izala members coming to pray from different areas in the city of Kano and metropolis.<sup>202</sup>

The Sermon in the Mosque

The Kofar Nasarawa Friday mosque attracted different people to pray, due to the style of the Friday sermons delivered. It is based on the calling of the Muslims to fear Allah and follow the teachings of Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H), emphasizing on the importance of prayer, unity of Muslims, brotherhoods, relationship, neighborhood and general observations of what was happening in the Muslim community. And also sometimes it can be on current affairs with regards to socio-economics, religious and politics. In order to give room for an each Imam to make his contribution, each of the Imams can lead the prayer in the mosque from time to time. Their sermons would be on calling the Muslims Ummah to be truthful and sincere in their daily activities, and also to uphold the tradition of visiting relatives, hospitals, prisons and orphanage to make the contributions. The issues with regards to marriage, upbringing of children, business and politics are discussing in the sermon. And also if there was something happening in the area, the community used to inform the Imams in order to preach in support or against it. For instance, there was area that youth used to gather for anti-social acts and the Imam was asked to talk about it, and he did, later some of the youth desisted the habit.<sup>203</sup> Recently, the Imam drew the attention of the people in Kano who had influence to seek justice for the alleged kidnapped Kano children and their conversion to Christianity by the Igbo.<sup>204</sup>

<sup>202</sup> It was the task took by the researcher in the effort to bring out the number of the people that pray in the mosque, this became possible because of the prayer observed in the mosque by the researcher.

The prayer in the mosque starts at 01:00 pm every Friday. But due to some circumstances, five minute will be added and it would not exceed 01:05 pm. The Imam would climb the Minbar at exactly 12:30 pm, and then the Ladan would call the prayer. The Imam would start the sermon in Arabic language and translate it into Hausa and the prayer would start at 01:00 pm. According to him, before the arrival of the Imam sometimes the sermon would be summarized in Hausa and some words of advice will be delivered.<sup>205</sup>

The Socio-Education Activities in the Mosque

The mosque serves as a center for learning because people (children and adults) are being taught in the mosque. The educational activities carried out in the mosque include, every Thursday Malam Muhammad Sani Ashir teaches Minhajjil Muslim, and on Wednesdays Malam Ahmad Abbas, the deputy Imam, would translate the Qur'an. Also, Malam Ibrahim Khalil teaches Ulummul aqida and Ahkamul Jana'iz on Fridays. The Sunday program is handled by Malam Abdalla Usman Gadon Kaya.<sup>206</sup> During the rest of the days, other Islamic books are taught in the mosque. These include Fiqh and Hadith.<sup>207</sup> Friday sermons delivered at this mosque are very interesting because, the main theme is based on current issues that affect the society. This style is adopted to promote the cordial relationship within the community and to avoid any misunderstanding.<sup>208</sup>

Furthermore, marriage contract, passing of information, naming ceremony, and occasionally Sallar gawa (funeral prayer) are caring out in the mosque. Others activities carried

Other contributions are also being made during the Eid El-khabir in order to slaughter cows and rams depended on the contribution made, to distribute it to the feeble and the needy people in the area, and some would be taken to orphanage, hospitals and prisons.<sup>209</sup>

4.3 TUDUN NUFAWA FRIDAY MOSQUE 2013

Tudun Nufawa Friday Mosque is located at Tudun Nufawa ward. Tudun Nufawa area shares borders with Tudun Wada and Mazan Kwarai quarters on the south, Yan Muruci and Jakara quarters on the west, Muskwani, Kurmi Market and Dambazau quarters on the north; it shares boarders with Makwarari and Lallokin Lemo quarters in the east.<sup>210</sup> Traditionally, it is settled by Hausa, Nupe and Kanuri peoples whose main occupation is business. Tudun Nufawa is blessed with learned scholars like Malam Ramalan, Malam Karibullahi Nasir Ramalan, Malam Sunusi Abubakar Ramalan Malam Abdul Hamid, Malam Maitama, Malam Awaisu and Malam Gama among others. According to my informant, Tudun Nufawa area derived its name from Malam Muhammadu Banufe who was reported to have migrated from Bidda, present day Niger State. This was during the reign of the then Emir of Kano, Sarki Sulaimanu (1805-1819). The emir gave the area to Malam Muhammadu Banufe and his people. The area was swampy and mountainous at the time. Sarki Sulaimanu and the people of Kano began to call the area “Tudun Nufawa”, hill of Nupe people, because it was largely occupied by Nupe people.<sup>211</sup>

<sup>211</sup> Interviewed with Malam Muhammad MahFuz, 64 years old, the Ward Head of Tudun Nufawa at his residents in Tudun Nufawa, on 06/02/2017, for details see the work of Mamuda M. Musa, “History of Nupe Community in Kano” Unpublished M.A Dissertation, Department of History Bayero University Kano.

In another version, during the reign of Sarki Muhammadu Rumfa (1463-1499) in his effort to destroy the remnant of traditional religious practices and encourage scholarship in Kano, left the door open to any Islamic scholar who wanted to settle or pay a missionary visit to propagate Islam. The Sarki encouraged Islamic learning and allowed entry to scholars, merchant and artisans into Kano. As a result of misunderstanding between Malam Muhammadu Banufe and one of the rulers of Bidda, he decided to migrate to Kano during the reign of Sarki Sulaimanu (1805-1819). And some of his disciples followed him and together with Malam, they settled at a place very close to Kurmi market and since then, the area became known as Tudun Nufawa.<sup>212</sup>

According to Mamuda, it might be agreed that, the Tudun Nufawa ward derive its name from Malam Muhammadu Banufe because, the various accounts of the historical origin of Tudun Nufawa as has been discussed above as well as the people that settled at the area. The first was that, the ward was certainly founded during the reign of Sarki Sulaimanu. And the second was that, since its foundation, the ward has been inhabited by Nupe speaking people, from Bidda, presently in Niger State.

The Establishment and Development of the Tudun Nufawa Friday Mosque

The place was an old dispensary center which later the then governor Sabo Bakin Zuwa (1983), decided to transfer it to a larger place than the current place, which was close to the center, so the government abandoned the old one. Then later the place was given to Malam Ramalan by the then military governor of Kano State, Muhammad Ndatsu Umaru (1987-1988), for the purpose of establishing a school and a five-daily-prayer mosque. The land was given to the scholar to ease the suffering his students were undergoing whenever it was raining season. They found it insufferably difficult to attend the school in his house between Magrib (noon) and Isha'i (night) prayers.<sup>213</sup>

The construction of the school and mosque began in earnest supported by individuals and group contributions. The earlier contributions were made by Alhaji Zakari Baba who bought land close to the place to include in the mosque and paid the labourers, and also the one made by one of the students of Malam Ramalan; Dr. Sa'idu Madigawa who is an architecture by profession, designed the structure of the mosque. Other contributors included the billionaire, Alhaji Aminu Dantata who gave the highest contribution the sum of one hundred thousand (#100,000), Alhaji Garba A.D Inuwa (Talban Kano) provided the doors and windows from his Aluminum company, and Alhaji Sabi'u Bako provided most of the block (bulu) in the building. Alhaji Sunusi Dantata sponsored the wiring and he also gave some money. Alhaji Baba Sani Buhari Daura son of walin Daura bought generator at the sum forty thousand (#40,000). Also, other contributors included: the Sarki Ado Bayero, Alhaji Inuwa Wada (Magajin Garin Kano), Alhaji Buhari Daura (Walin Daura), Alhaji Aliko Dangote to mention but a few. After the completion of the mosque and school at upstairs, people began to perform their five daily prayers in it. Malam Ramalan later transferred the school into a mosque.<sup>214</sup>

According to the ward head, having considered the population of the area and the fact that there was no other Friday mosque closed to this mosque, members of the community, together with the mosque committee, requested the scholar to lead them to the district head for an approval to transform the mosque into a Friday mosque. This was in 2013. The scholar led the delegates to the District Head and finally to the Emir. The Emir considered the request after a special consultation on the matter, and then gave the approval. This was on May 16, 2013.<sup>215</sup> On May 17, 2013, the first Friday prayer was performed at the mosque. A delegate from the Emirate Council joined tens of hundreds of other Muslim Ummah and performed the first Friday prayer at the mosque.<sup>216</sup>

The Administration and Management of the Mosque

The school and the mosque were built through individual and group contributions made as mentioned above by philanthropists and some of the students of Malam Ramalan. As a result of this, the mosque relied heavily on the contributions made by an individual and some of the students in the school. Before, the students of the school took the responsibility for providing funds for the needs of both the school and the mosque. Later it was decided to allow other people to make their contributions. That was why on every Friday, for people to make their contributions boxes were provided, there are peoples assigned by the mosque committee to go round with boxes to seek contributions from anyone among the congregate who is willing to make his own contributions.<sup>217</sup>

The mosque had a borehole which provides water for people to perform their ablution. The mosque had bathroom and toilet in down and upstairs, the ones at the down were using by male only while the ones at upstairs were to be use by female only. The mosque was using generator in case if there was no light. The committee members would come early to clean the

After the mosque was transformed into Friday mosque, having successfully passed the screening of the Shura Committee (Councils of Ulama of Kano), under the supervision of the Emirate Council Malam Karibullahi Nasir Ramalan was appointed as the chief Imam and Malam Sunusi Abubakar Ramalan as the (Na'ibi) deputy. Three Mu'azzins were appointed in the mosque, Alhaji Nazifi Ahmad as the first Mu'azzin, Malam Mujittapha Jibril Shawus as the second and Alhaji Hafizu Ahmad as the third deputy in the mosque. After the death of Alhaji Nazifi Ahmad, the second deputy Malam Mujittapha Jibril Shawus became the first and Alhaji Hafizu Ahmad as the second. As of the time of this research, there were two Na'ibi in a mosque.<sup>219</sup>

A brief History of the Chief Imam of the Mosque

Malam Karibullahi Nasir Ramalan was appointed as the chief Imam of the mosque. He was born on September 19, 1966 at Mazan Kwarai quarters, Kano. He started his education with Qur'anic studies and other Islamic studies at his father's tsangaya (a typical Northern Nigeria type of Qur'anic school). The Tsangaya School was located at his father's house. He travelled to many places in search of Islamic knowledge. He studied at Ulumul-Deen Islamic school where he was taught Qur'anic memorization. From there, he proceeded to Government Secondary School Gwale for further education. He also studied at Government Arabic Teachers College, Hadejia. He obtained a diploma certificate from Bayero University, Kano. He also travelled to Saudi Arabia for further studies where he stayed for three years searching for knowledge. Some of the subjects he studied, apart from the Qur'an, included Lugga from Malam Danlami Kurna; Aksari, Risala and Muktasar from Malam Ashiru and Malam Inuwa respectively.<sup>220</sup>

The Contributions of the Mosque

It is very important to note that, the mosque has been contributing greatly towards educating the Muslim Ummah to date. Although the mosque belongs to the Qadiriyyah brotherhood, during the Friday prayer even those who have different beliefs, ideas and understanding perform their prayer in the mosque. This was as a result of the mutual understanding between the Qadiriyyah members in the area and other followers. This became possible because of nature of the sermon in the mosque.<sup>221</sup>

The mosque had length of seventy nine (79) by forty seven (47) estimated by foot, and seventeen (17) lines, and each line accommodate at least thirty (30) people. As a result of this, the mosque had a capacity to accommodate at least five hundred and ten (510) people inside the mosque excluding those that pray at the compound. It could not be possible to estimate the number of peoples that pray in the mosque every Friday. Because apart of those that pray in the mosque regularly, on the east there was traditional market (Kurmi), some of them pray in the mosque. It also located at the densely populated areas of Jakara, 'Yan mota, Mazan Kwarai and Makwarari.<sup>222</sup>

The mosque in question attracted different peoples to pray, due to the style of the Friday sermons delivered, because the sermons delivered by the Imams are always based on the calling of the Muslims to fear Allah and follow the teachings of Prophet Muhammad

(P.B.U.H), emphasizing on the unity of Muslims, brotherhoods and to be truthful and sincere on their daily activities.<sup>223</sup> According to Malam Karibullahi Ramalan, he said that since the mosque was transformed to Friday, the Friday sermon was delivered by him and he has never missed to lead the prayer in the mosque.<sup>224</sup>

The prayer in the mosque starts at 1:20 pm, every Friday but due to some circumstances, ten minutes will be added and it would not exceed 1:30 pm. The Imam would climb the Minbar at exactly 12:50 pm, and then Ladan would call the prayer. The Imam would start the sermon in Arabic language and translate it to indigenous language (Hausa) that would last for thirty (30) minutes and prayer start at 1:20 pm. According to him, the idea behind the translating the sermon in Hausa was that, many people do not understand Arabic language, so it became necessary to translate for people to benefit.<sup>225</sup>

The mosque served as a center for learning because people including children and adults have been taught in the mosque. The mosque in question was initially built as a school and a five-daily-prayer mosque. They started with a primary section before opening a secondary section later as well as Tahzif (Qur'anic Science School) section. Other activities at the Qur'anic School take place between Magrib and Isha'i prayers. This program gives the adults the opportunity to study and even memorize the Qur'an.<sup>226</sup> According to some informants, the Qur'anic School for adults is very popular because people attend the school from different places

4.4 SHARIF BALA FRIDAY MOSQUE 2013

Sharif Bala Friday Mosque is located at Ayagi quarters. Ayagi quarters shares borders with Sani Mai Nagge, Warure, Dausayi, Gyaranya and Takalmawa quarters on the south, Kaigama, Kabuga and Mai Aduwa quarters on the west, Bakin Ruwa and Mai Aduwa quarters on the north. In the east, it shares borders with Dandago, Takalmawa and Mararraba quarters.<sup>228</sup> Traditionally, Ayagi quarters is inhabited by Yoruba, Hausa, Fulani and Nupe peoples. Business is their primary occupation. There are many learned scholars in the area. These include: Malam Sharif Bala, Malam Zikirillahi Usman Makwarari, Malam Bako Sufi, Malam Sharu Lawan, and Malam Usman to mention but a few.<sup>229</sup> Reportedly, the area derived its name from Muhammadu Jatau who was sent by the then Emir of Kano, Sarki Ibrahim Dabo (1819-1846), to settle in Ayagi due to some reasons unknown to him. Muhammad Jatau initially settled in Kwakwatawa area before he was told to move to Ayagi area. That was meant to attract other people to settle in the area. He was later appointed as the leader of Ayagi (ward head of Ayagi). Subsequently, people began to call the area Ayagi.<sup>230</sup>

In another version, the name of the founder of the ward was Malam Bamalle who came from Ogbomosho. It was said that the Yoruba people who founded Ayagi ward were from Ogbomosho and Ilorin and they were all Muslims. It may also be possible that Ayagi ward got its name from the reference Ayagi which the Nupe people who lived at Tudun Nufawa ward of Kano made to the Yoruba of Ayagi. This was because Nupe people referred to the Yoruba in Nupe language as ‘Ayagi’ just as the Yoruba in their own language call the Nupe, ‘Tapa’. Zakariya’u argued that, the ward of Ayagi was certainly founded during the reign of Emir Ibrahim Dabo possibly between 1819-1820, because the Ayagi was inhabited by Yoruba from Ilorin right from the time of its foundation.<sup>231</sup>

The Establishment and Development of Sharif Bala Friday mosque

According to my informant<sup>232</sup>, the land on which the Sheriff Bala Mosque built belongs to Alhaji Sheriff Bala (also known as Mahiru Bala). He first built houses for his children on the land, but when the need for a Friday mosque to be built in the area arose, he demolished the houses and began the construction of the mosque in 1989. After the completion of the mosque, Shaykh Nasiru Kabara and Shaykh Yusuf Makwarari were invited to open the mosque as a five-daily-prayer mosque. In 2013 however, the committee members of the mosque started thinking of the possibility of turning it into a Friday mosque. This was due to the difficulties people faced in attending Friday prayer in the city especially the aged. In addition, prior to this period, when there was no ban on “achaba” riders, people had to use the commercial “achaba” to attend Friday prayer at the Kano central mosque. In 2012, after the Boko Haram attacks in Kano, however, the Kano State Government banned the “achaba” business in the state. This affected even the private motorbike owners who used the bikes not for commercial use. They were not allowed to take anybody on the bikes for security purpose. The ban had seriously affected the people of Kano particularly the aged, women and school children. This ban made it difficult for people to take “achaba” to the central mosque.<sup>233</sup>

It was for this reason that Mahiru Bala deemed it necessary to turn the five-daily-prayer mosque he built into a Friday mosque so people could pray without any difficulty. Having known the tradition, he sought for permission from the son of the late emir of Kano (Ado Bayero), Alhaji Aminu Ado Bayero, the then District Head of Dala Local Government, to upgrade the mosque. A delegate headed by Shaykh Karibullah Nasiru Kabara made a request to the Emirate to allow his organization to upgrade the mosque in question due to the reasons mentioned earlier. The then Emir of Kano, late Ado Bayero and the Emirate, having considered the reasons forwarded by the leader of the delegate, accepted the request, and in 2013, the mosque was transformed.<sup>234</sup>

Malam Zikirillahi Usman was appointed the Imam of the mosque. He was born on April 3, 1977 at Makawarari quarters, Kano State. He began his early Islamic education with Qur’anic studies. He was initially taught by his father. When he grew up, his father took him to Malam Mahiru Bala, father of the mother of Zikirillah, in Ayagi, for the purpose of Qur’anic memorization studies. According to him therefore, he was taught by both his father and grandfather not only the Qur’an but other Islamic books and subjects like fiqh, lugha and Hadith. Owing to this reason, he never travelled to learn from any other scholar. He later enrolled to a primary school with the purpose of catching up with the new ideas of learning. Having completed the primary school, he moved to a secondary school where he obtained a secondary school certificate. Presently, he has a diploma certificate.<sup>235</sup>

A Qur'anic school was established in the mosque purposefully for Qur'anic studies: recitation and memorization of the Qur'an. Students are taught in the school from Saturday to Wednesday<sup>236</sup>. Another section was for adult education. Malam Makwarari himself taught Qur'an and other Islamic books between Magrib and Isha'i prayers on Thursdays and Fridays.<sup>237</sup> Other Islamic studies and activities also take place in the mosque occasionally. For instance, there would be Qur'anic recitation on the first day of every new Islamic month. People would gather to read the whole Qur'an throughout the night.<sup>238</sup> The gathering was first sponsored by Shariff Bala. From the time he died (2016) to this day, his son Sharif Auwalu takes over the whole responsibility of the Mosque.<sup>239</sup>

4.5 DUKAWA FRIDAY MOSQUE 2013

Dukawa Friday Mosque is located at the center of Dukawa ward. This area shares borders with Zangon Bare-Bari and Kurmi market quarters on the west, Yan Awaki, and Koki quarters on the north, Kofar Wambai, Lungun Makafi and Chediyar Feru quarters on the east, and on the south with Chiromawa quarters.<sup>240</sup> Hausa peoples are the original residents of the area and Dukananci and kirgi (hide and skin leather work) is their main occupation. Dukawa is also blessed with Islamic scholars like Malam Nasidi, Malam Bala and Malam Tijjani to mention but a few. Historically, the area was named Dukawa because of the leather business of the people in the

The Establishment and Development of Dukawa Friday mosque

Dukawa Friday Mosque was one of the oldest and still existing mosques in Kano city. It was built more than a hundred and fifty years ago.<sup>242</sup> The mosque is popularly known as Kaulaha Mosque. It belongs to the grandfather of Shaykh Malam Tijjani. The mosque was upgraded into a Friday mosque considering the distance and the fast increasing population of the area in the year 2013. People, particularly the aged, found it difficult to attend the central mosque on Friday. Many even felt reluctant to perform the obligatory Friday prayer. Therefore, concerned community members met with the committee of the mosque to see the possibility of upgrading the mosque into a Friday mosque. They all agreed with the circumstances and then approached the authority through the ward and district head to lead them to the Emir for an approval. The Emir, having considered the reasons presented to him, gave the approval. And, Friday prayers began to be performed in 2013.<sup>243</sup>

Malam Nazifi Gambo Ahmad Darma was appointed the chief Imam of the mosque. He was born on April 27, 1966 at Dukawa quarters, Kano. According to him, he studied Qur'an recitation and memorization at one of Tsangaya schools in the area. He was taught by Malam Salisu Ma-JA-baki. He attended the Islamiyya school of Malam Habu. Apart from the Qur'an, he also studied many more Islamic subjects with Malam Muhammadu Mai Shayi of Chediyar Kuda quarters. He also learned from scholars like Malam Abdullahi Uwaisu Limanci,

He proceeded to Sabowar Kofa Primary School and Government Secondary School Gwammaja (G.S.S.G), now known as G.S.S. Dala, where he obtained Primary and Secondary School Certificates in 1986. Malam Gambo was also a business man.<sup>244</sup>

According to an interviewee,<sup>245</sup> the mosque in question contributes immensely in educating the Muslim Ummah of the area. After each subh (morning) prayer of each day, people would gather in the mosque to perform Wazifa (Tijjaniyyah litany) after which they would proceed to the house of the Imam to study other Islamic books.<sup>246</sup> On Wednesdays between magrib and isha'i prayers, Malam Sayyadi Bashir Tijjani Usman would teach Kitabul Shifa, Riyadul Salihin and Risala. He later handed the program to the Imam of the mosque.<sup>247</sup> Also, there was this weekly recitation of Dala'ilul Khairat in the mosque as well as lecture sessions for educating and reforming particularly the Tijjaniyah members on how to hold on to Islam and live peacefully with one another. These lectures take place on Thursdays or Fridays.<sup>248</sup>

4.6 ALKALI BUHARI DAURA FRIDAY MOSQUE 2014

Alkali Buhari Daura Friday Mosque is located at Dandago ward. The area shares borders with Hausawa quarters on the south, Sani Mainagge 'B' on the west, Warure da Garangamawa quarters on the north, and in the east, with Mandawari quarters.<sup>249</sup> Dandago area is dwelled by Hausa, Fulani and Nupe peoples whose main occupation is tailoring and business. There are many Islamic scholars in Dandago quarters. These include: Malam Alimi, Malam Usman Yusufu Makwarari, Malam Na-Annabi Kakan Sharu Mukhtar, Malam Danladi Liman, Malam mai Tafsir among others.<sup>250</sup> Historically, Dandago quarters derived its name from two narrations. Firstly, it derived its name from a man called Dago, who is said to be the first settler in the area. He would refer people to find him at his son's house whenever they wanted to see him. And, people began to call the area "house of Dandago".<sup>251</sup> In another version, the name of the area came from the son of the King (leader) of Kofar Dogo located at Hauran Shanu quarters. After the death of the king, his son was appointed the ward head of the Dandago area, and from Dandago people changed it to Dandago, because they preferred the latter.<sup>252</sup> The two traditions if companied together, it can simply be observed that, the latter one was not likely to agree than the other, because, if we critically observe, the name of the man "dago" and tittle of "kofar dogo" can be prove that the name of the man was the same with the name of the ward, unlike the name of the kofar dogo where something was subtracted from the name i.e "kofar".

The Establishment and Development of the Alkali Buhari Daura Friday Mosque

It is important to note that, for over thirty years there had been a five-daily-prayer mosque in the place Alkali Buhari Daura Friday mosque built. It belongs to the Tijjaniyyah group. The mosque was first built by a man called Gwadabe Mai Tasa. This mosque was however demolished by the then Governor of Kano State and Senator, Eng. Rabi'u Musa Kwankwaso, as a result of road construction that would link Dandago with Aisami quarters. The government paid compensation for the houses and the mosque affected.<sup>253</sup> After the demolishing exercise, the space left was not enough for a new mosque to be rebuilt. Therefore, one of the philanthropists in the area, Alhaji Sani Buhari, offered to rebuild the mosque; he bought houses that were close to the mosque, and then rebuilt the mosque and even expanded it. The mosque was later upgraded into a Friday mosque. According to Abubakar, having followed the due processes, the Emir of Kano gave the approval in 2014.<sup>254</sup>

The chief Imam of this mosque was Malam Usman Yusufu Makwarari. He was born in 1940. According to him, he studied the Holy Qur'an from his father at early age. His father later took him to his uncle. He studied Fiqh, Lugha and Hadith before proceeding to study at a primary and a secondary school where he obtained certificates for completing the programs. This gave him a great opportunity to be appointed as the head of Qadiriyyah Makwarari branch. Also, he was appointed the chairman of the Zakka Commission.<sup>255</sup> Although Buhari Sani Daura appointed Malam Yusuf Makwarari as the chief Imam of the mosque, the Tijjaniyyah members did not object to the appointment; after all, the Tijjaniyyah adherents were allowed to continue their activities in the mosque. This was possibly due to the long existing mutual understanding between the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah groups.<sup>256</sup>

The contributions of the mosque

Furthermore, this mosque has been contributing immensely in enlightening and educating the Muslim Umma of the area. According to some interviewees, there is this Qur'anic recitation program that runs from Friday through Wednesday between Magrib and Isha'i prayers. The Qadiriyyah litany session was also performed in the mosque. Every day, after Subh prayer, Tijjaniyyah wazifa (another litany session) was performed in the mosque.<sup>257</sup> On Thursdays, Malam Muhammadu Zikirillahi, one of the na'ibi (Deputy Imams), would teach Hadith and Fiqh between Magrib and Isha'i prayers.<sup>258</sup> More Islamic activities take place in the mosque particularly in Almuharram (the first month of the Islamic calendar). People would gather to recite the Holy Qur'an for ten consecutive days. In Rabi'ul Awwal (the third month of the Islamic calendar), Maulud Nabiyya (a special festival for the celebration of the birth of Prophet Muhammad P.B.U.H) would take place in the mosque. In Ramadan period (the fasting period), Qur'anic tafsir (translation) and Ashafa recitation also take place in the mosque.<sup>259</sup>

Jakara Friday Mosque is located at Muskwani ward. The area is bordered by Jujin Yan Labu and Kwarin Mabuga quarters on the east, on the west with Yan Maruci quarters, on the south with Tudun Nufawa and on the north with Dambazau quarters.<sup>260</sup> Muskwani is dwelled by Hausa and Kanuri peoples. Most of the people are butchers, some of them are businessmen. This area is blessed with many scholars among whom are; Malam Adamu, Malam Salisu Adamu, Malam Na-ta'ala, Malam Ibrahim Mai Hadiyya and Malam Sale to mention but a few. Historically, the area was called Muskwani because of its large area of land where people come for horse riding performance during the annual Durbar festival (Horse riding). In another version, a man called Malam Abubakar Ibn Jalo Al-Gazargamiyyu from Borno State, specifically Ngazargamu was said to have migrated with his students numbering about over a hundred to Kano during the reign of Sarki Alwali. He left his home town as a result of a conflict between him and his brother who was the then leader of Kanuri peoples. They settled at Tumfafi area and sought for an audience with the emir. The emir welcomed them to Kano and asked Malam Abubakar to settle anywhere he liked within the city. He was accompanied by one of the emir's delegates. He subsequently chose to settle in Muskwani.<sup>261</sup>

Musa Kwankwaso. It is just opposite his old house.<sup>263</sup> The Shaykh requested to build the mosque on this land because people were using it as a dumping site there by polluting the environment.<sup>264</sup> Moreover, there was a call made by the community members that appealed to Shaikh Isyaka Rabi'u to build mosque opposite his old house.<sup>265</sup> Jakara Friday Mosque was completed in 2015, and in the same year having followed the due process, Friday prayers began in the mosque.<sup>266</sup> But it might be argued that, the Jakara Friday mosque was built due to the ideological difference between the Qadiriyyah and Tijjaniyyah, because the Tudun Nufawa Mosque which built since belongs to Qadiriyyah.

Malam Muhiddin Ashiru was appointed the Imam of the mosque. He was born in 1965 at Bakin Ruwa, Kano. He was well-educated, though he never travelled to anywhere for further studies. He studied the Holy Qur'an at a local tsangaya Qur'anic school. He was taught by his father, Malam Shehu Ashiru Atiku Bakin Ruwa. He taught him Qur'an, Hadith and Fiqh. Shehu Atiku was famous in terms of learning and teaching. He contributes immensely towards the development of the Tijjaniyyah group in Kano. After Shaykh Isyaka Rabi'u became Khalifa of Tijjaniyyah, he brought Malam Shehu Atiku closer to him, and later on, after following the due process of interviews and screening exercises, appointed him (Malam Shehu Atiku) as the Imam of the mosque.<sup>267</sup>

However, according to my informants,<sup>268</sup> in order to avoid conflict between the Tijjaniyyah and Qadiriyyah followers and community members, a precautionary measure

wastaken by the authorities concerned. This effort was necessary looking at the location of the new Friday mosque, very close to the Tudun Nufawa Friday Mosque on the south separated only by drainage.<sup>269</sup> Therefore, there had to be mutual understanding between the parties involved. For instance, when the first Friday prayer was said at the Jakara Mosque, a delegate was sent from Tudun Nufawa Mosque to ask Shaykh Isyaka Rabi'u to adjust the time of the prayer. They discussed, and later agreed to adjust the prayer time for a peaceful coexistence. The agreement became possible as a result of the understanding that exists between the Tijjaniyyah and Qadiriyyah sects. The Tudun Nufawa Friday mosque to start prayer at 01:20 pm, while Jakara Friday mosque at 02:15 pm. Sometimes the same people that performed their Friday prayer at the Tudun Nufawa Mosque would more or less be the same that would pray in the other mosque, if by any chance they missed prayer in the other mosque.<sup>270</sup>

The contributions of the mosque

Educationally, the mosque has been contributing immensely in educating and enlightening the Muslim ummah of the area. On Fridays, after the Magrib (sunshine) prayer, the weekly Friday supplication is followed by Qur'anic recitation. Furthermore, with the exception of Fridays, every day between Magrib and Isha'i prayers, people would gather to perform the wazifa and recite two juzu'I, (chapters) of the Holy Qur'an.<sup>271</sup> Occasionally, during the month of Ramadan (fasting period), many people would gather to recite the entire Holy Qur'an after which a special supplication would be said. In the month of Rabi'ul Awwal (Islamic month), people would also gather to recite the whole Qur'an to celebrate the birth day anniversary of

4.8 SHESHE FRIDAY MOSQUE 2016

Sheshe Friday Mosque is located at Sheshe quarters. The area shares borders with Soron Dinki and Daneji quarters on the south, on the north with Makwarari , Kwalwa, Marmara and Alfindiki quarters on the west and on the east with Kurna and Sharfadi quarters.<sup>273</sup> The residents of the area comprise of Hausa, Fulani, Kutumbawa, Katsina, and Nupe peoples. Their main occupation is business. It has been a center that accommodates learned scholars like Malam Lamido Mai Yar Makaranta, Malam Muhammadu Ahmadu, Malam Ali Isa and Malam Sani Banbaran to mention but a few. Historically, the name Sheshe is derived from the term “Shaykh” meaning “Malam” (a learned person; a teacher). This Shaykh came from Mali during the reign of Sarkin Kano Sulaimanu, after the 1804 Jihad of Usman Danfodio and settled in this area. The residents of the area, being unable to pronounce the word “Shaykh” in Malam Shaykh correctly, began to pronounce it as “sheshe”. And, that was how the name of the area was coined.<sup>274</sup>

The Establishment and Development of the Sheshe Friday Mosque

According to Malam Haruna Sadiu Baban Saddi, the building of the mosque could be dated back to sixty five years.<sup>275</sup> The mosque was initially built as a five-daily-prayer mosque by Alhaji Muhammadu Gote. The land on which the Sheshe mosque was built was given to Alhaji Muhammadu Gote by the then Emir of Kano Alhaji Abdullahi Bayero (1926-53) for the purpose of establishing a five-daily-prayer mosque. Alhaji Muhammadu Gote built the mosque and two houses closed to the mosque which he gave it to his children Alhaji Gwadabe and Alhaji Garba. After the completion of the mosque he handed it over to Malam Sadi Alfindiki. In 1979, the children of Alhaji Muhammadu Gote i.e, Alhaji Gwadabe and Alhaji Garba decided to expand the mosque, they rebuilt the mosque with upstairs to serve as school, the work ended in 1982.<sup>276</sup>

In 2014, Kano central mosque was attacks by Boko Haram which was why Sheshe mosque was transformed into a Friday mosque in 2016.<sup>277</sup> Emir Muhammadu Sanusi II gave the approval to transform the mosque into a Friday mosque. This approval was given to Shaykh Karibullahi Shaykh Nasiru Kabara. The approval came as a result of the insecurity problems rocking the Northern Nigeria region resulted from Boko Haram attacks targeting gathering centers. The Kano central mosque was targeted by the terrorists, knowing it was the largest weekly gathering center within the walled city, in order to murder the innocent people praying there. Therefore, Sheshe Mosque was upgraded into a Friday mosque, in spite of its being close to the central mosque.<sup>278</sup>

However, before the commencement of the Friday prayer in the mosque, consultations were carried out by the mosque committee to avoid conflict in the area. Among the consulted individuals were the ward heads of Alfindiki, Marmara, Kwalwa, Sheshe and Kundubawa quarters. On August 28, 2016, people from different parts of the area attended the first Friday prayer performed in the mosque, and it continues to date without any hindrance.<sup>279</sup> According to my informants, people were very happy because even before the fatal attack on the central mosque, the attacks on some places in Kano, made it compulsory for the Kano State Government to ban the commercial achaba riders. This made it difficult for the aged to attend Friday prayers in most places around the city. But with the commencement of Friday prayer in this mosque, many even trekked to the mosques, while those who could not, performed their prayer in their houses because the mosque was very close.<sup>280</sup>

<sup>277</sup> The attack on the Kano Central Mosque was a terrorist act carried out by Boko Haram on November 28, 2014. The mosque is next to the famous Rumfa Palace of the Emir of Kano; the emir performs his prayers in the mosque. The attack happened days after the Emir Sanusi Lamido Sanusi II urged the civilians to protect themselves against terrorist attacks. It occurred when the Friday prayer was about to start. The terrorists detonated a bomb and immediately after the explosion started shooting innocent people trying to escape.

The first chief Imam of the mosque was Malam Haruna Sadi Baban Saddi. He was born on 26th May, 2017 at Alfindiki quarters, Kano. Even though he grew up in a famous and scholarly family of Malam Sadi Alfindiki (his father), he travelled to many places in search of Islamic knowledge. His education started with Qur'anic studies at a local tsangaya. There has been a Qur'anic school in his father's house even before he was born. Malam Baban Saddi was taught other Islamic books by Malam Bala Almarga. He attended primary school at Tudun Madatai. He did his secondary school studies at Warure and at Gwammaja II. He obtained a B.A degree from Bayero University (B.U.K.) from the Department of Arabic. As of the time of the research, he works as a civil servant with Kano Municipal Local Government. He was a beneficiary of the government sponsored program that featured special seminars given by Imams of Friday Mosque in Saudi Arabia.<sup>281</sup>

Educationally, it is important to note that Sheshe Friday Mosque has been contributing greatly in uniting the Muslim Ummah through the weekly Friday sermons delivered. The sermons delivered by the Imam are always based on the teachings of Prophet Muhammad

(P.B.U.H), emphasizing on the unity of Muslims.<sup>282</sup> According to some informants, Sheshe area comprises of people with ideological differences. The predominant sects are the Qadiriyyah, Tijjaniyyah and Izalah sects. The mosque belongs to the Qadiriyyah Sufi order. For them to be welcomed and appreciated in such environment, the sermons must never be offensive to anyone irrespective of their belief. Hence, this could be the reason why many people pray in the mosque. You would find members of Tijjaniyyah and even Izalah adherents praying Salatul Juma'a (Friday prayer) in the same mosque.<sup>283</sup>

4.9 CONCLUSION

This chapter examines the motives behind the development and spread of Friday mosques during the period under study (2012-2016). As discussed, the emergence of Friday mosques in Kano city during this period was as a result of the insecurity bedeviling Northern Nigeria. After the attacks on Kano by the Boko Haram, the Emir of Kano approved the transformation of many five-daily-prayer mosques in Kano into Friday mosques. The difficulties people faced in attending Friday prayers particularly at the Kano central mosque also made it necessary to establish another mosque in order to ease the suffering. Following the factors responsible for this development are the biographies of the Imams of the various mosques. Also discussed are the educational contributions of these mosques towards the development of Islamic education in Kano, as well as the promotion of unity among the Kano Muslims who follow Qadiriyyah, Tijjaniyyah and Izalah among other sects respectively.

CHAPTER FIVE

IMPACT OF THE PROLIFERATION OF FRIDAY PRAYER MOSQUES IN KANO CITY

5.1 INTRODUCTION

While the factors responsible for the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques from 1992-2016 have been highlighted in chapter three and four, this chapter looks at the consequences of the proliferation of Friday mosque in Kano city. In addition, it examines the advantages and disadvantages of the surge in Friday mosques in Kano and Kano city in particular. In the process it lists the Friday mosques in Kano city and their categorizations. Finally, it concluded with the general observations and analysis based on the information available so far.

5.2 ADVANTAGES AND DISADVANTAGES OF THE PROLIFERATION OF FRIDAY MOSQUES IN KANO CITY

It is very important to note that, the acceptance of Maliki School of Law in the Hausaland discourages the habit of building more Friday mosque, in order to avoid the fragmentation of the Muslim Ummah. The Maliki school of thought insists that in a situation where by there are many mosques, Friday prayer should be said in the oldest mosque.<sup>284</sup> As mentioned above, right from the introduction of Islam in Kano, central mosque was built that served as a Friday mosque, despite the changed of location, demolition and rebuild Kano city maintained the tradition for a very long period of time throughout the period 1359-1992.

According to one tradition of the Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H), when he was on the march to Tabuk, the Banu Salim said to him that, they had built a mosque to make it easier for their feeble and elderly people, and they begged the Prophet to perform his Salat (prayer) in it and thus give it his approval. The Prophet postponed it till his return, because the mosque had been founded by Munafiqun (hypocrites) at the instigation of Abu Amir al-Rahib.<sup>285</sup> Although, the tradition did not specifically mentions the mosque as Friday mosque, but the lessons learned here was that, there must be some conditions for building a mosque. More importantly it must be built for the sake of God.

Tabari argued that a time would come in which the scholars discusses whether the group own Friday mosques should allowed or not.

“The people of your mosque became identical with your party. Gradually, as new sects arose, they naturally had mosques of their own, just as Musailama before them is said to have had his own mosque.....these special mosques were a great source of disruption in Islam and we can understand that, a time came when they learned discussed whether such mosques should be permitted at all”.<sup>286</sup>

It was against this background that we can examine the implications of the spread of the Friday mosques in Kano city. As mentioned, Friday mosque was not supposed to belong to any group. Even though, the above quotation does not specifically state the type of mosque. But we might believe that it was referring to Friday mosque, because the aim of Friday prayer was to bring the Muslim together every Friday. Nevertheless, the group owned Friday’s mosques in the society wherever found could be a source of disruption, disunity and conflict among Muslims, because it has a religious and social importance.

In Hausaland, after the 1804 Jihad, the tradition of building Friday mosque very close to one another was discouraged by the Jihad leader. Sheikh Usman Dan Fodio wrote a book Ihya al-Sunnah wa Ikhmad al bidi'a, where he stated clearly that, in a situation where there are many mosques in the city or town, then Friday prayer should be said in one of the mosques. By implication therefore, he discouraged the custom of proliferating mosques in the Muslim community. This was the reason why there was only one Friday mosque for the whole of Kano for a very long time (about 633 years). Although there were many Hadith that encourage the building of mosques for people to benefit by gaining rewards, but the Hadith has not indicated Friday mosque specifically.<sup>287</sup>

Recently however, the Emir of Kano Malam Muhammad Sanusi II, also called on wealthy individuals in the North to use the wealth Allah has blessed them with, not only in building mosques but to also educate girls and discourage their early marriage. He said “I am just tired of people coming to me to say I want to build a new mosque. You know, we keep building mosques and our daughters are illiterates. So my appeal is that if you really want to help Kano, do not come to me with a request to build a N300 million mosque, because I have enough mosques everywhere. And if I don't have a mosque, I will build it myself. If you really want to help go and educate girl child in the village.”<sup>288</sup>

One of the most important advantages of the spread of Friday mosque in Kano city was that, it saved the aged ones from the difficulties they faced in attending Friday prayer at the Kano central mosque. Every Friday some of them had to trek, while others would go by bicycle, motorcycle and cars to say their prayer in the city. With the spread of Friday mosques in the city their suffering eased. Secondly, the times of prayer in the mosques differ. This would help people not to miss the prayer, because if you miss the prayer in one mosque, you have the opportunity to say your prayer in another mosque. If there is only one mosque as it was before in the city of Kano and by any chance you missed the prayer, you would lose the benefits of that Friday prayer for the week.

Another advantage was that Friday mosques if well designed stands to beautify a city. When one looks at the Islamic architecture in the Muslim areas generally, you find out that Friday mosques served as focal point of attraction in those cities, for instance, central mosque in Kano, Ilorin, Timbuktu, and Sankore.<sup>289</sup> The mosque also served as centers of learning; in Kano city the mosque is used to educate the Muslim populations. You find out that Islamiyya Schools were attached to some of the mosques and also other forms of preaching annually or occasionally do take place. Other activities include marriage contract, and naming ceremony to mention a few.

The Friday mosque also serves as an information center. The Imam of the mosque uses the opportunity to pass the information of what is happening around the area and elsewhere during sermon sessions. In almost all the Friday mosques in the city sermons are translated into indigenous language (Hausa) to help the general public to understand the sermon. Traditionally, the sermon was supposed to be recited in Arabic but because most of the people were not knowledgeable in Arabic language, it became necessary to translate the sermon into Hausa. Even though, today there are various means of passing information such as radio, newspapers, television to mention a few, still mosque maintained such position in Kano city.

It is important however to note that, one of the great disadvantages of the spread of Friday mosque is the promotion of disunity since the main aim of congregation prayers is, to bring the Muslim community together. The occasions were used weekly to have Muslims converge at one place, by so doing they were given the ample opportunity to interact and benefit socially, politically and economically. Multiplication of the mosques defeats this purpose. Some aspects of the differences between Muslims that seem apparent now, could have been avoided if there were very fewer mosques common to all Muslims. But the fact that mosques increased at such unprecedented rate often led to exclusiveness.<sup>290</sup>

However, the implication of this development was that, while the scholars engage in verbal conflict among themselves, the less privileged scholars used the opportunity to spread their ideas and beliefs. For instance, the Maitatsine uprising of 1980s in Kano city, one of the factors that paved way for the uprising was the misunderstanding and misinterpretation of facts and persistent discord among the different Sufi brotherhoods. The bone of contentions was based on religious practices and rites. And also Boko Haram (Western Education is blasphemous) in 1999 that is currently rocking the country was as a result of such ideological differences. In this period, the scholars were at loggerhead with one another, particularly between the Qadiriyyah, Tijjaniyyah and Izala groups.

However, with the Friday prayer mosques been spreaded people would be reluctant to go to the mosque in time, because of the idea that, if you miss in one you might attend in another. The Islam encourages people to attend Friday prayer before the sermon is read for the benefits or rewards, not going on time stopped people to attain such benefits. In some cases, you discovered that people will not come to the mosque unless the prayer is about to start. They would run in order to attend the prayer it was wrong islamically. Some of the mosques tamper with the town planning; the congregants of the mosques located on the major roads/streets hinder the movement of commuters.

Lastly, the organizational Friday mosque was another source of conflicts in the society, because the people became identical with the mosque. The group's mosque was discouraged right from the introduction of Islam, in order to avoid fragmentation of Muslim Ummah into sects or camps. Because of this in Kano, central mosque was built by the first Sarkin Kano to accept Islam for the entire people in respective of their religious differences. With the emergence of new ideas and beliefs Friday mosque in Kano city was now turned into a symbol of doctrinal identity. One of the implications was that, some people are not attending the Friday prayer in a mosque that does not belongs to their groups.

5.3 LIST OF THE FRIDAY PRAYER MOSQUES AND THEIR IDENTITY CATEGORIZATION IN KANO CITY

As mentioned earlier, since the introduction of the Islam in Kano, there was only one Friday mosques for the entire Kano, but from 1969 Kano witnessed the establishment of additional Friday mosque at Fagge outside the city, since then Friday mosques are increasing in Kano metropolis. In 1978, the new religious organization struggle to establish mosques in Kano, but it was in 1991-1992 they started to build mosques in the Kano metropolitan. The struggle to build mosques and coupled with the Sufis to maintain its influence in the society together with other factors as mentioned earlier indirectly influenced the transformation and establishment of Friday mosques in Kano city 1992-2016. The Tijjaniyya Sufi order was the first to establish Friday mosque in 1992, and it now control three Friday mosques in the city of Kano. The Qadiriyya Sufi order which was second to establish Friday mosque in 2011, it now control six

Friday mosques while Izala transformed five daily prayer mosque to Friday mosque in 2012 and it also controls one Friday mosque in the city of Kano.

5.4 CONCLUSION

Over the years, historians and Islamic scholars, writers and observers have different views about the factors responsible for the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in the Muslim World. In Nigeria many scholars were of the view that the development of this phenomenon was attributed to many factors which included religious, socio-economic and political. Likewise in Kano the phenomenon was viewed as a result of the establishment of new settlements and distance, due to the historical trends of migrations and movement of peoples.

This development has necessitated the desire for the research to find out the factors responsible for the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in Kano city between 1978 and 2016.

Firstly, the research begins with the general introduction and conceptual clarification of the phenomenon. In view of this, a lot of literature has been reviewed in order to have a clear understanding and focus of the study. Most of literature reviewed focuses on Kano metropolis, looking at the factors responsible for the proliferation of Friday mosques in Kano metropolitan. This helps the research to look at factors responsible for the spread of Friday mosques in the city of Kano, through the historical methodology. The research viewed the Conflict Resolution theory to guide the research on how to explain the phenomenon. The research also discusses the significance concerning the phenomenon and limitations of the study.

Secondly, this study discusses the factors that led to the introduction of Islam in Kano by the Wangarawa merchants in 1359 and the impact of Islam on the socio-religious, political, and economic. It discusses the importance of the Friday prayer and the Sarkin Kano Yaji in 1359 who was the first king to accept Islam established a Friday mosque for the whole of Kano. Since then Kano had one Friday mosque not until 1969 when the need for the establishment of another outside the city of Kano.

Furthermore, the Friday mosques have been functioning right from the introduction of Islam, as centers of mobilization, recruitment, accommodation, hospitality and discourse to mention a few. In Kano city, Friday mosques have been functioning as centers of education, naming ceremony, marriage contract, and public lectures. Various Islamic groups having realized the importance and functions of the Friday mosque have used it in spreading their respective ideas, belief, influence and identity.

The study looks at the emergence of Islamic organizations or groups from 1978-1995 in Kano city. One of the important points here was that, the emergence of Islamic groups with new ideas and beliefs and coupled with the socio-religious and economic factors created or rather intensified the struggle for influence and identity among scholars in Kano. Since then, scholars have been battling with minor and major conflicts for years. The dispute between and among scholars became more apparent during the 20th and 21st centuries. One important factor that separated the scholar's apart was based on the type of religious practices and the rituals that were performed by Muslims as part of the religion. Because of these reasons, scholars deviate from their primary responsibility (teaching) and start accusing fellow Muslims as non-believers. With this development the scholars struggle to control and build Friday mosque for influence, and identity in Kano city as discusses below.

Thirdly, they started establishing mosque to show their influence and identity in the city of Kano, which was why in 1992 Koki mosque was transformed into a Friday mosque in the northern part of the Kano city by the Tijjaniyyah group. Subsequently, Dala mosque cited in the northern part of the city upgraded into a Friday mosque by the Qadiriyyah in 2011. In 2012 Ashabul Khafi Friday mosque in the western part of the city was established by the breakaway faction of the Qadiriyyah-Nasiriyya and also Kofar Nasarawa mosque was upgraded to Friday mosque cited in the eastern part of the city in the same year by the Izala group. This development could not be unconnected with scholars each trying to show their influence and identity in the community, because it was from 1992 Friday mosque in the city started to bear group identity. The religious group's mosque can be easily identified by the activities that take place in the mosque. The major contenders are Qadiriyyah, Tijjaniyyah and Izala groups with each having Friday mosques, but the Izala owns one Friday mosque in the city.

Fourthly, the phenomenon became more apparent in Kano city from 2012 to 2016, it was during this period that three Friday mosques were established owned and controls by different religious groups. According to my informants, the increase in Friday mosques in Kano city during this period was as a result of the insecurity bedeviling Northern Nigeria. The attacks on Kano by the Boko Haram made it necessary to the emir of Kano to approve the transformation of many five-daily-prayer mosques into Friday mosques. The argument here was that, it was on record that before the establishment of a Friday mosque in Kano there must be five to six kilometers distance as the case may be, but Tudun Nufawa and Jakara Friday mosques were demarcated by just a drainage and even some of the Friday mosques in Kano city did not reach to that level of distance. Fifthly, the research concludes with the consequences of the proliferation of Friday mosque and general analyses.

In analyzing the courses of the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in the city the question to ask is why did the Friday prayer mosque increase from one to eleven in our period of study? The increase in population and the establishment of new centers made it clear that a single Friday mosque for the entire city was grossly inadequate to accommodate the populace. Consequently, there were four mosques transformed to Friday prayer mosques which include: Koki mosque in 1992, Sharif Bala, Tudun Nufawa and Dukawa mosques all in 2013. The emergence of religious organization changed the socio-religious setting of Kano with each group trying to show influence and identity in the community. In 2014 after the rebuilding and upgrading of Alkali Buhari Daura mosque, it was given to Qadiriyyah, but initially it belonged to Tijjaniyyah, both the groups agreed to use the mosque without any problems. However, Shaykh Isyaka Rabi'u built a Friday mosque in 2015 opposite his old house at Jakara. The mosque was very close to Tudun Nufawa mosque. The Izala groups upgraded their mosque at Kofar Nasarawa to Friday prayer mosque in 2012. Another Friday mosque was built at Sani Mainagge (A) by the breakaway faction of Qadiriyya-Nasiriyya in 2012.

The desire of the religious organizations to establish and control Friday mosques has no doubt created or intensified the conflicts between the various Islamic groups in Kano. The two Islamic groups (Qadiriyyah and Izala) struggled over the ownership and control of Dala mosque, as a result of which the mosque was upgraded to Friday mosque in 2011, to resolve the conflict. The attacks on Kano by the Boko Haram made it necessary to the Emir of Kano to approve the upgrading of many five-daily mosques in Kano into Friday mosques. In the walled city of Kano, Sheshe mosque was upgraded to Friday mosque in 2016. Finally, the interest showed to build mosques by philanthropist led to the development and spread of Friday prayer mosques in Kano city, because some of the mosques were either built by single family, individual or through community effort, as discusses above.

The four Friday mosques of Koki, Dala, Kofar Nasarawa, and Tudun Nufawa had something in common at some point and also diverge in something. With regards to the upgrading of the mosques for instance, the Friday mosques of Koki, Dala and Tudun Nufawa followed the procedures established by the emirate council before the mosques were upgraded, due to the mutual understanding between the emirate councils and Sufis orders, while the Kofar Nasarawa was upgraded without following the procedures, because there was misunderstanding between the Izala and emirate councils. As a result of this, the Sarki was responsible for the appointment of the Imams of Koki, Dala and Tudun Nufawa mosques after successfully passed the screening. The Izala group was responsible for the appointment of its Imams. And also each of the mosques, Na'ibis were appointed for instance, the Koki, Dala and Kofar Nasarawa Friday mosque each mosques had two Na'ibis, while Tudun Nufawa Friday mosque had one Na'ibi.

The Koki, Dala, Kofar Nasarawa and Tudun Nufawa Friday mosques adopted the method of translating the sermon into indigenous language, the logic behind was to make Muslims understand the messages passed during the sermon. Some of the mosques agreed on the rotation of the sermon to each Imam weekly or occasionally. The Imams of Dala Friday mosque agreed on the weekly rotation and while Kofar Nasarawa Friday mosque Imams agreed on the occasional basis. The Imams of Koki and Tudun Nufawa Friday mosques agreed on the basis of the absent of the Imam.

Based on the observations made so far, some of the sermon delivered on the Koki, Dala and Tudun Nufawa Friday mosque had something in common, this would not be unconnected with the relationships of the mosques and the emirate. As mentioned above, the sermons delivered by the Imams on the mosques are always based on the calling of the Muslims to fear Allah and follow the teachings of Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H), emphasizing on the importance of prayer, unity of Muslims, brotherhoods and to be truthful and sincere on their daily activities. While the Kofar Nasarawa Friday mosque goes beyond that, some of the sermons were broader in outlooks because national and local issues with regards to politics and socio-economic activities were discussed in the mosque.
